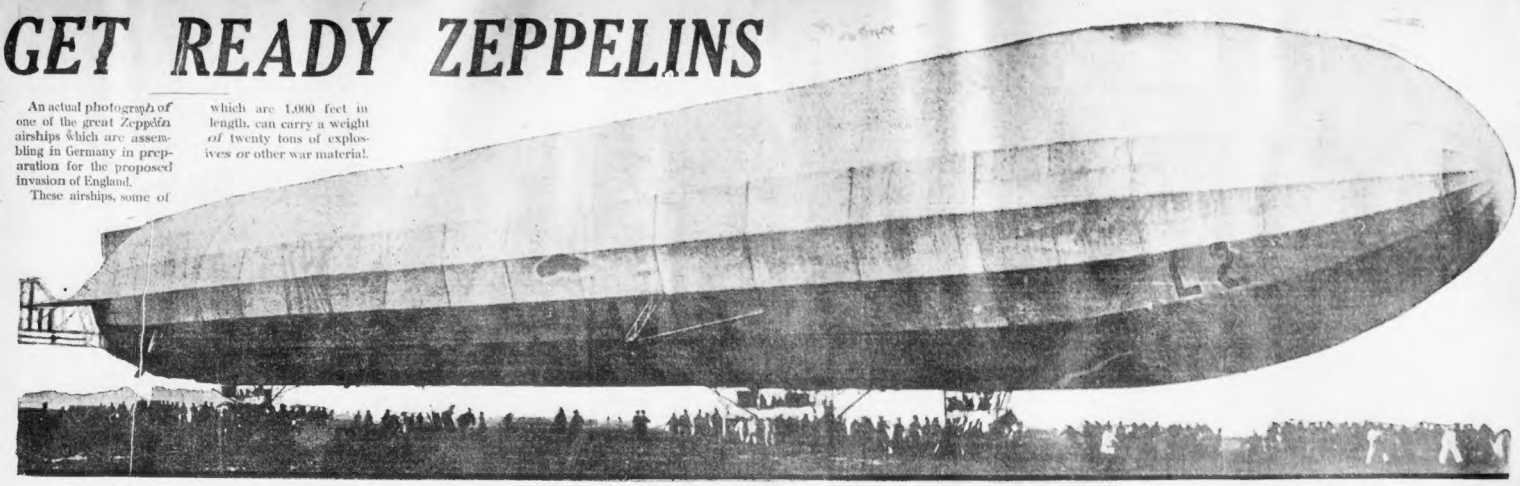
GET READY ZEPPELINS

An actual photograph of one of the great Zeppelin airships which are assembling in Germany in preparation for the proposed invasion of England.

These airships, some of which are 1,000 feet in length, can carry a weight of twenty tons of explosives or other war material.



BASLE, Jan. 2.—It is reported here that German air bases have been established at Namur, Antwerp, Hamburg and Kiel, where Zeppelins are mobilizing for a great aerial invasion of England. Another new Zeppelin has left Friedrichshafen for an unknown destination after several trials over Lake Constance, in which torpedo-shaped bombs were dropped at floating targets.

PANIC IN CONSTANTINOPLE

BROWN'S OFFICE NOW BEING RUN BY STATE POLICE

Deputy George C. Neal of the State Police today took charge of the office of State Supervisor of Small Loans as the temporary successor to E. Gerry Brown, who was removed by Governor Walsh just after midnight with the unanimous approval of the Executive Council.

The Governor and Council also removed Fred Freeland Walker from the office of Commissioner of Animal Industry, and Dr. Lester H. Howard was named to take control temporarily.

Former Supervisor Brown did not appear at the State House up to noon, and it was understood that he was busy planning his fight for a public investigation by the Legislature into his case. His counsel, Clarence Rowley, said:

"Mr. Brown will be heard from very quickly. He is full of fight. I cannot say just where he is now, but he'll be heard from—and that very soon."

Acting Supervisor Neal ordered Mr. Brown's private papers taken from the ousted official's desk and at once assumed his new duties.

The seven members of the Council present unanimously approved the removal of Commissioner Walker. Councillors Guy and Frothingham were not present. The charges against Walker, specified in the Governor's letter to him, centered principally around the issuance by Walker of bills of sale to owners of slaughtered cattle, binding the State to pay half the cost of the animal and the United States the other half, with no authorization from the State.

There were also general charges of the recent failure of his department to establish a stringent quarantine in time to check the spread of the foot and mouth disease at the start. The amount to which the State was bound by Walker to pay to cattle owners is estimated at $65,410 up to December 12. It is also charged that Walker's appraisal of the slaughtered live stock is in excess of the assessed valuation of the animals.

WOMAN MUST STAND TRIAL IN SLAVE CASE

CHICAGO, Jan. 2—The indictment by a Federal Grand Jury here of Colonel Charles Alexander of Providence, millionaire clubman, and Miss Jesse Elizabeth Cope, formerly prominent in Los Angeles society, is expected to bring about a new development in prosecutions under the Mann act, whatever may be the outcome of the present "white slave" charges.

The Department of Justice has asked the Supreme Court at Washington to make both the man and woman defendants in future cases.

In a brief filed with the court the government holds that both alleged principals are equally responsible. If this is upheld, women involved in future cases will be just as careful as men to prevent them from coming to the attention of the Federal authorities. Such a condition would, it is believed, effectually stop the use of the Mann act under some circumstances.

District Attorney Charles F. Clyne announced today that the government will push to a speedy trial the cases of Colonel Alexander and Miss Cope. Miss Cope still denies the bribery charge and protests her innocence of any attempt to corrupt the Federal agents. Whatever compromising documents exists, she says, were signed by her in the belief that "it was the proper thing" for her to do.

A statement given out by her attorney says:

"As much for the protection of other young and unsuspecting women against the wiles and arts of unprincipled men as for any other reason, Miss Cope voluntarily has made of herself a public sacrifice to vindicate the law.

"If she has signed any documents or entered into any so-called agreement with any government officials whereby they have agreed for a consideration to do some act in respect to affecting a settlement of the civil injury inflicted upon her, she did so in entire good faith, upon representations made to her by such officers that it was the proper thing for her to do."

Colonel Alexander is sixty-seven, is married and has two grown daughters. Miss Cope is thirty-four.

MISS EDITH HATCH, who drove off Malden highwaymen with red pepper.

WELLESLEY HAS BIG CELEBRATION

Wellesley College professors and students had a big celebration on the campus over the completion of the $2,450,000 fire fund. Here are the words of one of the songs they sang in serenading President Pendleton:

It a Wellesley fire began at last,
Ill, nine were almost done;
If all the girls who lost their clothes
Were counted one by one;

If a lassoop hitched on the Chapel Dress,
In the days of twenty-five,
How many millions for the Light
Could President Pendleton raise?

Chorus:
Problems such as these have we,
College is no easy job, oh!
Do not let your friends pass by,
Pass them till the last,
So we get our final cascade
For this New Year's Day.

The serenaders were led by Miss Margaret Dickey Griffin, '15, of Malden. Faculty members made speeches about the splendid work of everybody in raising the fund, and telegrams were sent to Bishop Lawrence, president of the college trustees, and to Miss Candace Stimson, chairman of the alumnae committee, expressing the appreciation of the college for their work for the fund.

IMMUNITY FOR NEW HAVEN MEN REFUSED

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—The pleas of immunity interposed in behalf of John L. Billard, James S. Elton and William Skinner to the indictments charging them with having as directors of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad violated the Sherman anti-trust law, have been overruled by Judge Grubb.

The defendants claimed they were entitled to immunity because of the testimony they gave before the Interstate Commerce Commission in Washington.

RESCUES SISTER AS HOME BURNS

Rushing down a burning stairway with flames leaping from both sides, Max Jacobson of No. 24 Lombard court Malden, rescued his sister, Gertrude today. He carried her over his shoulder in safety to the street.

Gertrude was found overcome in her room by smoke by her brother, who burned his hair in his heroic rescue and upset 400 feet, as it went through the burning stairway.

Max, fifteen-year-old brother, Julius, sounded the alarm by running in his bare feet with his night clothes on, to the box at Suffolk square.

The building is a two-story cottage and the damage is about $1,000. The fire started under the cellar stairs.

Lynn Man Sued for Divorce in Worcester

WORCESTER, Jan. 2—Mrs. Ethel C. Seaver of Gardner has filed suit for divorce here against Eugene Seaver of Lynn, alleging cruel and abusive treatment. They were married in 1909, and have a son, who's custody the wife seeks.

Lynn Girl to Wed Malden Doctor

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel A. Donovan of No. 24 Pierce road, Lynn, announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Marguerite M., to Dr. J. J. Corbett of Malden. The wedding will take place in June.

GATEWAY TO PORTE SHELLED BY THE ALLIES

ATHENS, Jan. 2—The bombardment of the Turkish forts at the western end of the Dardanelles by British and French warships, which was commenced yesterday, was continued today with increased vigor.

Reports from Constantinople say that conditions there are rapidly approaching the panic stage. Trade reports say that the anti-German agitation is growing. Hostile demonstrations against Germans and the Kaiser's subjects in the ottoman capital are expected momentarily.

Turkish bankers are issued against loans to subjects of Ireland, France or Russia under penalty of $50,000 fine and two years imprisonment.

Holy relics have been removed from Constantinople to Broussa, where the Sultan and his personnel are making ready to follow. All of the available forces, about 150,000 men, are concentrated in the city.

Artillerists is practically exhausted heavy guns removed to Chatalja, which has been fortified. Floods of entrenching work is in progress along the shores of the Dardanelles and Bosphorus. Fortifications are also being erected on the Island of Marmora in the Sea of Marmora. The Boyir Straits are being made to resist passage of a battle fleet. An attack on Egypt has been definitely abandoned and the troops recalled to defend the Asiatic side of the straits and Broussa, the German families are fleeing the city.

Killed on First Day at Crossing

Bartholomew Murphy, fifty-five, well known to about everybody in Reading, was killed by a Boston & Maine train on his first night at his new job of watchman at the gate tender at the Woburn street crossing in Reading.

One of the gates went out of commission Monday night. A hurry call was sent out for a man who would take the place of the gate boy watching pedestrians and teams with a lantern when the trains approached.

Somebody suggested "Bat" Murphy would like the job.

Murphy liked the proposal and went to work. At 2:30 a. m. today while crossing the tracks with his lantern, a north bound train hit him, killing him almost instantly.

FITCHBURG, Jan. 2.—Numerous coasting accidents have led Police Chief Thayer to order his force to see to it that there is no sleighing on forbidden streets.

Latest War Bulletins

LONDON, Jan. 2.—The Admiralty issued an official announcement today saying that thirty-five officers lost their lives in the sinking of the formidable. This statement did not give the total loss of life.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 2.—A report has reached here that the Kaiser's condition is much worse than is publicly known and that in fact it is extremely serious. An operation on his throat was advised. But had to be delayed. It is expected that he will return to Berlin for the operation from which temporary relief is expected.

LONDON, Jan. 2.—An army order just issued announces that the British army will be further developed by the creation of six armies, each consisting of three army corps, making a total of 720,000 men.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 2.—The sound of heavy artillery firing from the direction of the Yser can be heard at Sluis on the Belgian-Dutch frontier. It is believed that the British fleet is again in action off the Belgian coast.

PETROGRAD, Jan. 2.—The capture of the Austrian fortifications around the Galician village of Mahonka and Mahonka itself, with 3,000 men, 68 officers and ten guns, was officially announced here today.

FORMIDABLE SUNK OFF PORTSMOUTH

LONDON, Jan. 2.—The Admiralty issued an official announcement today saying that thirty-five officers lost their lives in the sinking of the Formidable.

This statement and not give the total loss of life. Nor did it make any reference to the report circulated in Paris today that the Formidable was sunk off Portsmouth, the chief naval station of Great Britain.

Following the sinking of the Formidable by two German torpedoes with the attendant appalling loss of life all England today faces the fearsome possibility that Winston Churchill's boast of the British navy's ability to stand the loss of a battleship a month will be put to the test by the Germans.

Archibald Hurd, naval expert of the London Daily Telegraph, referring to the battleship Formidable wrote today:

From a military point of view the loss of the battleship is the most serious blow the Germans have dealt us. But we feel reason to anticipate that such blows would be struck. In fact, we have set paid as heavily for control of the sea as seemed probable we should pay. Those who study the war from armchairs cannot realize how fierce the struggle has been, but the navy knows and somebody may tell.

The London Chronicle analyzed today that survivors of the Formidable report that the vessel was torpedoed both fore and aft, indicating that the attack was made by a fleet of submarines instead of by a lone craft as in the case of sinking German dreadnought explorer.

No further official word came today.

KING GEORGE IS CONCILIATORY IN PROTEST REPLY

By HERBERT TEMPLE.

LONDON, Jan. 2—From a government source it is learned that King George is taking a personal part in the foreign office negotiations relative to the reply to President Wilson's note protesting against interference with American commerce by British warships at sea.

It is understood that the King, the Foreign Minister, Sir Edward Grey, Prime Minister Asquith and other influential members of the government are in favor of an immediate conciliatory reply.

Following the exchange of more notes it is expected that an armistice week will be effected whereby American ships will be freed from the delay of searches and seizures by British warships. The same principle of non-interference, except in especial cases, will be maintained toward other neutral shipping.

The French and Russian Foreign Offices are reported to be in thorough accord with the British office in the matter.

There was a Cabinet meeting today when the question was again considered.

When the publication here of the full text of President Wilson's note

KING GEORGE FAVORS CONCILIATORY REPLY TO U. S. COMMERCE PROTEST

the British press has adopted a much more amiable attitude toward the United States protest. Practically all the influential newspapers are urging the government to meet the United States half way and to lose no time in effecting a solution of the neutral shipping problem which will prevent friction in the future.

On paper the London Statist professes the belief that British bankers are behind the neutral trade over which the question of interference has arisen.

KAISER WANTS "PEACE WORTHY OF ALL OUR SACRIFICES"

Emperor William, replying to a New Year's telegram from the King and Queen of Bavaria, sent Their Majesties the following message:

"You speak after my own heart when you say we all have but one thought, which is that a peace worthy of the sacrifices already made, and still to be made, be secured for the beloved fatherland in the new year. (Signed) WILHELM.

PAGE TELLS ENGLAND U. S. WILL FIGHT FOR COMMERCE RIGHTS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Ambassador Page has cabled the State Department that, in answer to the British insinuation that America's protest against England's seizure of merchant ships was intended mainly for home consumption, he has given the British government informal assurances which, according to the interpretation here, means that the United States is in a fight for its commercial rights and intends to stick to the finish.

Mr. Page has informed the British Foreign Office that America's note of protest was phrased in a candid and frank manner and was not written with the idea of publication. As the synopsis leaked out, however, the ambassador had been instructed to arrange for the publication of the complete text to satisfy the desire for more information in both countries.

Ambassador Page described the general attitude of the British government and the people toward the American note of protest concerning shipping as entirely friendly. He said that a reply had been promised in a very few days.

The ambassador detailed the British press criticism whose tone he regarded, on the whole, reasonable and amicable. In some quarters, not among officials, he found a disposition to search for a motive behind the American note, some Englishmen suggesting that the Washington administration had been compelled to yield to pressure from members of Congress representing constituencies vitally affected by the interruptions to trade.

The views in the British press cabled here by Mr. Page were read with much interest by officials. In reply to these, the United States government, it is stated by officials generally, is disposed to take into account the general difficulties occasioned by the war, but insists that steps be taken to prevent impositions on trade that is actually legitimate in every respect.

THERE WILL BE NO WAR, SAYS KNOX

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—"There is not the remotest chance of war with England, but the note of protest sent by President Wilson is timely, wise and correct," according to Philander C. Knox, who perhaps knows as much about international law and finesse of diplomacy as any person in the United States.

Besides serving as Attorney-General of the United States in the Cabinets of President McKinley and President Roosevelt, Mr. Knox, formerly United States Senator from Pennsylvania, was also Secretary of State during the administration of President Taft. It was while he was guiding the affairs of the United States that the Root-Knox code of declaration of London, which modified the law of contraband and rights of seizure and search.

It is on the acceptance of these terms that England is now basing much of its claim to the right of holding up American shipping.

"For the first time since I retired from official life Mr. Knox consented to talk on international affairs. Whatever statements Mr. Knox made were made without the full text of President Wilson's note before him. For that reason many of his statements were general rather than specific.

DANGER TO COMMERCE.

"We have had one hundred differences with England in the last century that were far more serious than the present one," said the famous Secretary of State. "All of them were adjusted by proper diplomacy. I am in full sympathy with President Wilson's determination to resort to a minimum the right of England to search our vessels. I do not understand that he challenges that right. He desires, I understand, that England shall exercise it in a way that will least interfere with our commerce.

"As to its effect on American commerce, in all cases of war neutral nations whose vessels carry contraband of war are subject to seizure and the right of search. That is something that belligerents should exercise with the due rights of the neutral nations.

"I cannot imagine that this is going to be violated in any sense, that it is going to break up American commerce. That commerce might be delayed by taking our vessels to neutral ports and holding them, is true. That is the danger."

What do you think of President Wilson's note of protest?

"I think it an extremely good thing for him to do. I believe with the late John Hay in plain truths. Sometimes the truth is harsh, but it is nevertheless the truth. I see nothing in the phraseology of the protest to which England could take offence.

U. S. ATTITUDE UNCHANGED.

"It has got to be a habit in this country if you cannot criticize the substance of a government paper to criticize its style. I see nothing in the present note to warrant criticism, and I cannot see how England can.

"That the note implies hostility toward England also is nonsense. President Wilson merely is trying to protect American commerce. If either England or Germany is injured by his stand, that is not his fault. That is accidental. His duty is to the American people."

"What can the United States do, leaving war out of the question, if England refuses to accede to the demands of this country?"

"What a government does when it makes a protest is based on international law. If it is not international law after the protests, international law is on the protest. It is only a matter of judgment. I do not believe the present situation will reach that point.

"I should not like to volunteer advice to my government, but I believe that every American knows whether President Wilson is right or wrong and whether he should go in with Taft later through without qualifying or protesting.

"I believe he is likely to go through with this."

Mr. Knox was asked the direct question: If the nations at war make a contraband list, either the United States is bound to accede to the list? The word bound implies that it would be obligatory," he replied. "That is largely a matter of government decision. The standard as to what constitutes contraband differs from time to time. What really is obligatory is indeterminate. All nations try to make a list of contraband goods, but the orders and conditions of war necessarily makes a change in that list. Things that would have been contraband twenty or thirty years ago are not now regarded as contraband and vice versa.

"Do you regard the declaration of London as obsolete? Is a universal law as to what constitutes contraband more to be desired?"

The British battleship Formidable, which was sunk yesterday by German submarines with a loss of 600 men. This picture shows the battleship in gala dress for the Spithead review last August, by King George. The Formidable was then considered one of the best ships of the Channel squadron.

600 MEN GO DOWN WITH FORMIDABLE

day from the British Admiralty since the initial statement of the loss of this $5,000,000 sea-fighter, but it was reported that trawlers picked up seventy survivors in addition to the eighty at first known to have been saved, making a total of 150 saved out of the at least 750 officers and men aboard.

Evidently the Germans, in pursuance of their avowed policy to whittle down the British fleet by a "war of attrition," singled out and sank the flagship of the mighty channel fleet.

OPERATED FROM ZEEBRUGGE.

It is believed the submarine destroyers of the Formidable operated from one naval base at Zeebrugge, Belgium, from which point they have several times attacked the British fleet, shelling the Belgian coast and against which the British made one sea attack in which they claimed to have destroyed several German submarines which had been shipped overland in sections and which had not been again assembled.

A severe storm was raging when the Formidable went down. Waves were breaking thirty feet high. Nevertheless several boats were launched and some of the survivors kept afloat nearly twelve hours before their rescue. The exact location of the Formidable when she was torpedoed has not been made public by the British Admiralty. But it was somewhere in the English Channel.

The London Chronicle's correspondent at Brixham states that the captain of the trawler Providence, which picked up seventy survivors in a cutter, sighted other fishing boats close at hand.

The first intimation of the disaster came when the trawler's crew, running for shelter before the gale, saw a small open boat driving through the waves under bare poles with a sailor's scarf hoisted on the end of an oar.

A rope was with difficulty got to the cutter and the boat hauled to the trawler's stern. One at once began to jump aboard the larger craft, but it was half an hour before the transfer was completed.

A pair of trousers stuffed in a hole in the bottom of the leaking cutter, which was partly filled with water, saved those survivors from drowning before they were sighted by the rescue ship.

These survivors were later landed at Brixham, near Plymouth. The rescue were made off Start Point, in Devonshire, which juts into the channel twenty-five miles southeast of Plymouth.

In the last British naval list the captain of the Formidable was given as Arthur B. Lewkey, with Commander Charles F. Ballard; Captain John C. Reed, in command of marines, and Dr. Godfrey Taylor, fleet surgeon.

Austrian Emperor Honors Americans

LONDON, Jan. 2—The following wireless dispatch has been received here from Berlin: "The Austrian Emperor has conferred on Commander C. E. Courtney, commander of the American navy collier Jason, and John Edward Jones, American consul-general at Genoa, the Red Cross badge of honor, first class."

VON BUELOW FAILS TO WIN ITALY

PARIS, Jan. 2.—According to a Paris Temps correspondent just back from Italy, Prince Von Buelow's mission to Rome has failed.

"It is not true," says the Temps, "that Von Buelow offered Italy any concrete composition for intervention in Germany's favor, or at least for her disarmed neutrality. He made vague promises to induce the Italian government to show a less friendly attitude to England, as England is the sole enemy of Germany.

"His mission principally was to induce Italy that her interests should be with Germany, as once England was ousted from the Mediterranean Italy might become a large empire."

The Temps adds that the Kaiser sent Von Buelow to Italy charged with such a difficult mission that there was only a vague hope of success. The Emperor's idea was to exploit Von Buelow's popularity in Rome on the chance it might lead to actual benefit for Germany or should he fail he would let Von Buelow bear the whole responsibility and thus deliver a blow at his political party, which notoriously is antagonistic to the Kaiser.

German Troops on Italian Frontier

VENICE, Jan. 2—A German army corps has been ordered to leave its present station on the frontier and make its headquarters at Riva, in Trentino. The noticeable explanation of the order is that Austrian soldiers or any other nationality cannot be trusted in frontier work because they notice and escape over the mountains in hundreds.

GERMANS RUSH FRESH TROOPS AS FLANDERS BATTLE GROWS

LONDON, Jan. 2.—With the greatest duel of artillery the world has ever known, the renewal of the bombardment of the German positions along the Belgian coast by the British fleet and the hurrying of German troops, 200,000, it is reported, to the battle lines in Flanders and France, the development of the struggle in the western zone of war holds the attention of the world again today.

Paris reports today say that artillery is still playing the most important part in the gigantic engagement in France, Belgium and Alsace-Lorrain. All the way from Lombartzyde on the North Sea coast, to Steinbach in upper Alsace, the artillery duel is the greatest in the history of warfare and raging with varying degrees of intensity.

French airmen are becoming more active at the eastern end of the line to meet the fresh attacks of the German airmen in northern France. Dunkirk is reported to have been damaged by German shells. Dunkirk is the port, of all the French base hospitals.

GAINS BY BOTH SIDES.

The destruction of German trenches near Parvillers and La Boiselle is reported in this afternoon's official war office statement, but slight successes for the Germans are also admitted. The French have maintained all their gains in West Flanders, near Nieuport. Artillery ducls are in progress around Arras, Albert and Roye and along the Aisne, where the French have gained the mastery. At one point on the Aisne French artillery prevented a German concentration movement.

The Germans are again bombarding the French position at Rheims. East of Ilsleima the Germans lost ground. In the Argonne district, however, the Kaiser's forces made a slight advance in the forest of La Grurie. The Germans have suffered very heavy losses at Steinbach, the statement says, where the French have taken three more rows of houses to hand-to-hand fighting in the streets.

RUSH UP FRESH TROOPS.

It is reported from a Dutch source that great masses of German troops passed through Cologne on their way to the Yser front. They estimated at 210,000 men. Thousands of wounded Germans are passing eastward through Cologne from West Flanders.

Amsterdam sends a report that the sound of heavy artillery firing from the direction of the Yser can be heard at Sluis on the Belgian-Dutch frontier. It is believed that the British fleet is again in action off the Belgian coast.

In the east the Russians have not only stopped the German offensive on Warsaw and forced Von Hindenburg to exert extraordinary effort to keep his battered lines intact, but have burst through the Austrian plans for Galicia's defence and are once more pushing forward over Hungary's snow-covered plains.

News coming by the way of Rome says that the last of the Czar's troops to penetrate the passes of the Carpathians appeared on the eastern ends of the mountain traverses early yesterday morning, and by midfield had captured a number of Hungarian villages and had reoccupied a great part of the territory which they captured on their first incursion.

The new invasion has been made by four lines of Russian troops, all of considerable strength. One of them is believed to have forced Dukla pass, and another Uzsok pass, where the Austrians have been concentrated in their greatest strength.

TO DEFEND AUSTRIA.

The importance of this movement is emphasized by the expression of military experts in Petrograd, to the effect that within a week every Austrian soldier will be called back to the defence of Austrian soil and the Germans will again be left to fight their battles unaided.

The operations preceding the great advance of the Russian troops have been summed up in the latest official report by the Russian War Office, which tells not only of the increasing force of the pressure against the Austrians, but also of the success of the direct operations with the Germans.

It sets forth that the Russians had successfully checked the German attacks both by day and night south of the railway from Bolomov to Medevieve. It adds:

"In western Galicia the battle continues and we are developing our advantage in repulsing Austrian attacks. We took fortifications on the heights south of Konan and Kremlu and north of Barvinek, in southwest Galicia.

"In the region of Baligrod bayonet attacks inflicted enormous losses on the enemy, whole companies of their troops being exterminated. In the late evening of December 29 the enemy here began a precipitate retreat. According to reports from this region we seized more than 3,000 prisoners, including many officers, and fifteen machine guns."

TURKS IN PANIC

Interest is still centred on developments at the Turkish Porte, where it seems that Constantinople may be the first of the capitals of the Teutonic allies to fall. Dispatches today from Athens, Greece, say that the Turks have abandoned all plans and thought for offensive movements and are concentrating all energy on the defence of the capital against the threatened attack of the allied fleets which is said have already opened on the outer ports of the Dardanelles.

The same dispatch says that panic prevails in the Porte. Holy relics have been removed to Brousa, whither the Sultan and his personnel are making ready to follow. All of the available forces, about 150,000 men, are concentrated in the city.

REPORT KAISER WORSE.

Amsterdam has a report that the Kaiser's condition is much worse than he has publicly known and that in fact it is extremely serious. An operation on his throat was advised, but had to be delayed. It is expected that he will return to Berlin for the operation from which temporary relief is expected.

Venice hears by the way of Trieste that Austria is preparing to send a new expedition of 1,000,000 men against Servia. Archduke Fuegen has accepted the command. The new campaign is planned on a large scale, embracing 1,000,000 men. Troops are reported being moved toward Bosnia, Herzegovina Slavonia.

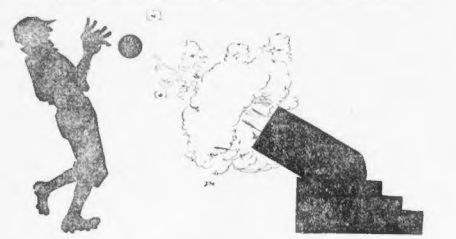
VENICE, Jan. 2—It is reported from Trieste that Austria is preparing to send a new expedition against Servia. Archduke Fuegen has accepted the command. The new campaign is planned on a large scale, embracing 1,000,000 men. Troops are reported being moved toward Bosnia, Herzegovina Slavonia.

Filene's Automatic Bargain BASEMENT

"The impossible is impossible only until someone accomplishes it"



Could Hank Gowdy Do this?

CATCH a cannon ball red-hot off the gun? Impossible, of course. But that was said about some other things young Mr. Gowdy has done, just as the automatic system of price reductions in the Filene Basement was declared impossible, the whole enterprise a fizzle.

Next week will be celebrated the sixth anniversary of the basement business—a business that has increased at a rate almost beyond belief—a business that now includes the wardrobe wants of every member of the family. Next week, therefore,

The Filene Basement Will Mark Its Sixth Birthday By Breaking All Records

Easy to say, isn't it? Yes, and pretty hard to do. But nevertheless that is just what shall be accomplished. Our confidence is based upon two things: first, that the public has learned to expect much of these anniversary sales; second, that greater values than ever have been provided.

JUST a word of explanation may not be amiss. The Filene Automatic Bargain Basement is an integral part of the business of William Filene's Son's Company, and yet it has its own separate organization of buyers and sellers. This organization is in keen competition with every store that sells right merchandise at right prices. That includes the main Filene store.

We mention this to make it plain that the Filene Basement is not a Hank Gowdy whose business it is to catch what the main store may throw.

On the other hand it has a small army of men and women in the market places seeking what cash can accomplish.

Once a year we celebrate the Basement birthday by giving the people more for their money than ever—not market plunder, but seasonable apparel for the whole family, carefully chosen. Next week, beginning MONDAY morning, will be such an occasion.

See the newspapers for details—and make it a point to walk through daily. New lots EVERY DAY for six days.

WOMAN DEFIES BLACK HANDERS

Miss Mabel Wilbur, the wealthy Easton woman of forty whose estate is under guard by a State police official and town constables, today defied the authors of the series of Black Hand letters which demanded she leave $1,000 at the gate of the Easton Cemetery upon penalty of death.

"I certainly will not obey these Black Hand demands," said Miss Wilbur to a reporter. "If they think they can frighten me, I guess they don't know me. I am not concerned for my safety, but I will do everything I can to help apprehend these letter writers, who are certainly a menace to the community.

"I am the jolliest bachelor girl in Easton, and I know these letters cannot be the work of anybody in town, for I have no enemies in Easton. I think some one in some nearby place made the mistake of thinking me a person who could be frightened out of some money easily.

"I notified the postoffice officials, and they sent Inspector Rice here from Boston. I think some good views will be developed before long, but any $1,000 I have will stay right where it is, no matter how many missives decorated with skulls and crossbones I receive."

ARMED MEN READY.

United States Inspector Rice, State Detective Richard Griffin and Constable Dowling of Easton are the men devoting all their time to solving the case.

It was decided to establish a close guard after the failure of these three officers and Constable Elisha Ellis to ambush the black hand at the lonely spot by the cemetery which had been selected as the place in which to leave the $1,000.

The first note received by Miss Wilbur was dated December 14. It read:

"If you value your life at $1,000, deposit that amount at the gate of the cemetery at Centre street by Wednesday, the 16th.

The letter was unsigned and decorated with a skull and crossbones. It was written in pencil and dropped into Miss Wilbur's mail box in her front dooryard.

She notified the local authorities and the Federal authorities in Boston. On the night specified the four officials waited in the cemetery all night. No one, except some women, came near the cemetery gate. It is thought possible that the black handers disguised themselves in women's clothes to reconnoitre, and discovered the officers.

The second note arrived December 22. The mail box in Miss Wilbur's dooryard had been removed together with the post which had supported it. The second letter had been posted in the mails at South Easton. It was even more threatening than the first. This second letter read:

AMBUSH AGAIN FAILS.

We want you to leave $1,000 at the cemetery gate Wednesday night. If you don't we will murder you in cold blood. As sure as there is a God in Heaven we will send you to hell so quick you will never want to come back.

This note, also written in pencil, in the same hand as the other, was unsigned except for the rude drawing of a skull and crossbones.

Again Wednesday night the four officers laid in wait. The ambush again failed. It was then decided to guard Miss Wilbur against any attempt on the part of the letter writers to carry out their threats against Miss Wilbur.

Miss Wilbur is the daughter of the late Lemuel K. Wilbur, who was for many years a coal dealer of Easton. He was also interested in real estate. At the time of his death, some years ago, the settlement of his will caused no little dissension among the other members of the family. Miss Wilbur was finally allowed one third of the entire estate and the family homestead. Miss Wilbur is considered the wealthiest woman in town, and with the exception of the Ames family, the wealthiest person in town.

False Alarm Hunt in Wakefield Case

A flurry was caused in Wakefield when Miss Gertrude McDonald thought she caught sight of Biagio Palzone, the man wanted by the State and local police in connection with the murder of Morris A. Silberstein, the Lawrence jeweler, December 29. A search of a house brought out the man, who bore a resemblance to Palzone, but was not the man wanted.

Third Generation in Woburn Masonry

To Mr. Horeb Masonic Lodge of Woburn came a rare experience when one of the third generation in a family was made master. In 1866-67 Thomas G. Davis presided; his son, William F. Davis, Sr., who later became grand warden, followed him in the years 1886 and 1887, and now the mantle of the master descends to the grandson of the former.

Sensation in Cowles Divorce Suit

Wife May Offer Detectives' Stories

MRS. FLORENCE J. COWLES, WHO ASKS FOR DIVORCE

FIGHTS FOR GIRL IN DIVORCE SUIT

Mildred W. Cook of Newton—fifteen years old on New Year's day—is to be the central figure in a court battle for her custody, according to the statement of her stepmother, Mrs. Marion G. Cook of Newton.

Mrs. Cook has filed a suit for divorce against Charles H. Cook of Newton, alleging cruel and abusive treatment. The wife has asked the East Cambridge Court to give her the custody of her stepdaughter.

Today the wife said that her husband would contest her efforts to get possession of Mildred, his daughter by his first wife, who died when the girl was very young.

"But I shall fight my hardest for Mildred," said the stepmother. "I have taken care of Mildred since she was four years old. I have been her real mother.

"On the face of it it does not seem as if a stepmother has much right to a stepdaughter. But I love Mildred as I would a child of my own, and she loves me. I want her to stay with me, and I intend to battle my very best to keep her with me."

Mrs. Cook is recalled by Newton people as the bride in a school romance. When she was nineteen and a student in the Wellesley High School she was wedded to William H. Knight, who was then a pupil in the Allen School in Newton. She divorced him in 1903, and he died out West. She married Cook in 1905.

Salem Board O. K.'s Prize to McLaughlin

The Salem Rebuilding Commission has denied that unfair methods were used in awarding the $10,000 Salem architectural prize to James F. McLaughlin of Boston. According to the members of the commission the designs of Mr. McLaughlin were superior to any of those which were submitted. The award was based solely on merit. The plans were for a $100,000 school building in Salem.

Plea Against Doctor Once in Navy Yard Clash to Be Heard Soon.

One of the first cases likely to be called when the New Hampshire divorce court opens its session at Portsmouth this month will be that of Mrs. Florence J. Cowles against her husband, Dr. Edward S. Cowles, who conducts a sanitarium in Portsmouth.

Mrs. Cowles, who filed suit for divorce last year, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Jaquith, of No. 94 Marion street, Brookline. Her father is a prominent Boston attorney. She and her two small daughters are now living with her parents.

Dr. Cowles is a second cousin of Rear Admiral Cowles, U. S. N., who is a brother-in-law of former President Roosevelt. Dr. Cowles was formerly a Dartmouth street physician in this city. Several years ago he came into public notice through a difficulty at a Charlestown Navy Yard dance with Paymaster George Percival Auld, U. S. N.

NAVAL MEN EXONERATED.

It is claimed that rudeness was offered a young lady and there were court martial proceedings in which Auld and Surgeon A. H. Robbett were involved. Both officers were exonerated. Later Dr. Cowles was fined $10 in a Boston court for assaulting a Boston Elevated conductor. He appealed.

Mrs. Cowles was called one of the most beautiful women in Portsmouth when she lived there. Her cousin in that city, County Solicitor Ernest L. Currill, is quoted as saying that testimony at the coming divorce trial will be sensational.

Her father opposed her marriage to Cowles, who is a Virginian, and after he heard through Brideconut Cupid, dispatches of the wedding, Mr. Jaquith said:

"I did not in any way sanction the marriage, nor do I approve of it now. My daughter disobeyed me. She married against my wishes. First I financed Dr. Cowles, and I told my daughter so."

NURSE NAMED IN PAPERS.

Dr. Cowles has had a sanitarium in Portsmouth about three years, and it is said that his wife had the place watched by detectives. In her papers for divorce she names Miss Allie Arena, a trained nurse at the institution, while she also accuses her husband with reference to Boston and Portland women. She also says that she was forced to live with persons who were mentally unbalanced.

It is understood that Mrs. Cowles objected to having in her home at Portsmouth, which was the family mansion opposite the sanitarium, wealthy patients of the doctor. He has treated many prominent New Englanders.

He was examining physician for the Emmanuel movement, in which Miss Jaquith took an interest, when he met his future wife.

Mr. Jaquith refuses to discuss his daughter's suit for divorce, saying it is going to be tried in court and now in newspapers. But remarked also in regard to Dr. Cowles: "I do not know whether he intends to contest the proceedings, but if he is a wise man he will not."

KILLED WOMAN BY 'COMMAND OF GOD'

BANGOR, Me., Jan. 2—Charles Henry Hamm, wealthy retired farmer and Civil War veteran, held today in the local jail, is reported by the authorities to have confessed shooting and killing his former housekeeper, Mrs. George Whitmore, thirty-three, in the sitting-room of her home at Hudson.

The shooting was witnessed by several of Mrs. Whitmore's eight children, the oldest of whom is but fourteen. Hamm is said to have been angered by her failure to repay an alleged old loan of $200. The police say Hamm declares: "I was commanded by God to do it."

According to the police, Hamm appeared unexpectedly at Mrs. Whitmore's home, followed her at work in the kitchen. When she denied owing him any money, the police say, he exclaimed:

"Then I must kill you. God has commanded me to do it."

As he spoke, Hamm drew a gun, it is charged, and shot her in the face. She died almost instantly. Mrs. Whitmore's brother, who is very deaf, was in the room at the time, but the police believe he did not hear the shot. Hamm is seventy-one and served in the Eleventh Maine Regiment during the Civil War.

BAR GIRLS FROM WALTHAM BOUTS

No longer may the girls of the Waltham High school watch their favorite boy schoolmates fit out their prowess with the boxing gloves.

Henry Danes, physical culture instructor, under whose guidance the exhibition bouts have been held at which the school girls, and even the friends of the high school students attended in force, was notified today to bar the girls and all outsiders from the exhibitions, at least until after the report of the committee appointed by the school board to investigate, had been its report.

The order is the result of one of the stormiest school board meetings in the history of the town. Arguments hammed back and forth. Some of the members of the board expressed the opinion that girls never should have been allowed to witness the fights, but only one came out openly for the abolition entirely of the boxing lessons for the boys. Theron W. Temple said: "Boxing is conducted by clean sports, and should have no place in our public school system."

The fight against the attendance of the girl students at the fights was opened and led by Mrs. Helen Weaver. Her principal grievance was an issue of a Boston daily paper, which she waved again and again in the faces of the board members, and which contained a story of the fights in the Waltham school, illustrated with pictures of some of the young women students who attended the exhibitions.

"I am in favor of boxing in the public schools," she said, "but not in the manner in which it has been conducted here. The girls ought to be prohibited from attending these bouts. Outsiders should be kept out. As boxing is conducted now in the high school, it is more of an exhibition than a demonstration of a course of instruction.

"Boys who show proficiency in fighting are put on for exhibition bouts. This ought not to be permitted. There has never been any restriction as to those attending these bouts, and the weekly exhibitions are always well attended."

Dr. Henry A. Wood, Frederick H. Bert, Everett R. Ela and Clarence E. French all spoke in favor of permitting the boys to be instructed in boxing as a healthful instruction. They all expressed the conviction that it was not good policy to prevent the girl students or outsiders to be present. Superintendent of Schools W. F. Parkinson concurred in this opinion. Mayor Thomas E. Keating presided, but took no part in the debate.

Plan American-Made Economy Fashions

A Boston cooperative association seeking simplicity, practicality, beauty and economy in dress will meet at No. 9 Myrtle street this afternoon to decide upon plans for American-made fashions that will combine comfort and style in dress models. It is expected the movement will lead to increased manufacture of American dry goods and to originality in costume design. The Myrtle street House has been offered to the organization as a headquarters.

Papers Widely Read, Easier for Libraries

CHICAGO, Jan. 2—Newspapers are so accessible to all that their use is not essential to libraries, according to the opinion of members of the League of Library Commissions, meeting here. Dr. Frank P. SOUTH BOSTON PEOPLE REJOICE OVER THE CLOSING OF COVE STREET AFTER 15 YEARS

Cove street bridge, which the Boston Terminal Company, the corporation controlling South Station property, is ordered to remove.

Approve Decision to Remove Bridge After Persistent Demands By Leaders.

General approval was expressed today of the decision handed down after years of litigation to close Cove street and have the Boston Terminal Company, the corporation controlling the South Station property, tear down the Cove street bridge.

Former Representative William H. Hickey said: "I believe the Mayor is doing the proper thing in doing away with the Cove street bridge. It will help the city a lot of money, and the Mayor, with characteristic expert energy, cost of it by the improvement of South Bridge. In my opinion every resident will miss the bridge."

Councilor John A. Langone declared: "I believe the idea of doing away with the Cove street bridge, which was originated by Mayor Curley and carried out successfully by Mayor Peters, is a capital one, commending [illegible] McNeary: "Mayor Curley will expend the money for the betterment of South Boston and the people, and furthermore will not neglect the Fourteenth district than any other. Chief Magistrate is the father of the city of Boston. Every business will be handicapped by its removal."

W. L. Dwyer said: "The bridge will be a big loss to many business and ladies of the district would rather [illegible] than to travel around it every day."

William H. Hayes, prominent, said: "I was in favor of retaining the bridge, as it was a great convenience to residents and business men of the district."

Councilor-at-large Joseph Lee declared: "Mayor Curley did a good thing for South Boston in removing the Cove street bridge. In the first instance it was done required by the people of this district and has from its opening been a menace to pedestrians who were compelled to use the roads next to it. Although I am not in politics, I commend Mayor Curley for his action."

Ex-Senator J. Keenan said: "I believe the Mayor is right in removing the bridge. While some persons may be inconvenienced, the majority of residents will derive more benefit from the removal of the bridge. Cove street is the main thoroughfare in the district and I think it more attractive than it ever was in the past."

WOMAN SLAIN BY DRUG; TRACE SALE

MANCHESTER, N. H., Jan. 2—Orin J. Flanders, a machinist employed in a local garage, is held by the police on a charge of poisoning his wife, at the same time an effort is being made to trace the sale of the poison which resulted in the death of his wife Bertha.

A seventeen-year-old girl is reported implicated in the case.

Mrs. Conaroy, who before her marriage was Miss Bertha Schaffer of Canton, Mass., died November 29. Several days ago the police received information which led to the exhuming of the body. An analysis of the vital organs substantiated the suspicion that Mrs. Conaroy had been poisoned by the Amoskeag pills, had died of poison.

The authorities refuse to make public the nature of the poison which killed Mrs. Conaroy.

The slain woman was twenty-six years old. She was married to Conaroy about six weeks

FILIPINOS UNFIT TO RULE, SAYS TAFT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—That the Filipino people will be unfit for self-government for at least another generation was asserted today by former President Taft before the Philippine Committee of the Senate. He testified at the hearing on the Jones bill granting a larger measure of self-government to the islands.

Mr. Taft blamed the Democratic party and its pledge of independence for the prolongation of Aguinaldo's war upon the Americans and for the obstruction of the program of gradual training of the Filipino people for self-government. He took the ground squarely upon a statement of President Wilson defining self-government and the duty of the American nation toward the Filipino in that respect.

SAYS WILSON WAS RIGHT.

"Mr. Wilson was absolutely right," said Mr. Taft, "when he wrote 'that self-government is not a mere form of institutions. It cannot be given. It is a form of character which follows after long discipline. No people can be given the character of maturity.'"

The ex-President declared that as commissioner in the Philippines he sought to advance education and the participation of the natives in the government to the extent of their ability. In this policy he said the commission was opposed by the military element and the American merchants who were antagonistic to any movement toward the ultimate independence of the islands.

With a hearty laugh Mr. Taft said: "Why, gentlemen, I am in a position where I can tell you what I think. I did not ask to come here, you invited me. I am like the man up an apple tree, you've got to listen to what I have to say.

MUST LEARN ENGLISH.

"You ask me how long it will take to make Filipinos fit for self-government. I tell you it will be the time necessary to give these people to learn English so well that they shall become an English-speaking people. You cannot do that in one generation. Not all of the Filipinos are now being educated. More money should be spent on the schools there.

"Remember you cannot make a generation over—a generation of adults 90 per cent. of whom are woefully ignorant and out of touch with civilization."

As illustrating the enthusiasm for independence among the ruling class in the islands, Mr. Taft stated that there was one party called the "party of progress and independence," another the "party of immediate independence," still another the "party of urgent independence" and an extreme group calling itself the "party of independence explosivista."

Robbers Club Man in Revere

While Joseph Stanforth of No. 162 Clark avenue, Chelsea, was waiting for a street car at Winthrop and Campbell avenue, Revere, early today, two men stepped up behind and struck him down. Then then searched his pockets, Stanforth screaming for help all the while. When nearby residents started to his aid the two highwaymen fled. A park officer chased, but did not catch them.

MRS. WILLIAM F. CARRIGAN AND 'MANAGER BILL'

STAYS FROM WAR TO WED WARRIOR

Friends of Hilda Millet of the Vincent Club learned today that her recent marriage to Lieutenant William Harris Booth of Williamsburg, Va., was a victory for Cupid over what Miss Millet felt to be a call to nurse the wounded in the American Hospital in Paris.

In June Miss Millet, a niece of the late Frank D. Millet, the artist, graduated from the Waltham Training School for Nurses. At the outbreak of the war several fellow-students volunteered their services as nurses, and Miss Millet decided to do the same. After a term at the sanitarium of her uncle, Dr. C. S. Millet, in East Bridgewater, Miss Millet's plans were practically complete.

Then Lieutenant Booth, stationed at the navy yard at Charlestown, was ordered to the Philippines. In order to reserve stateroom bookings on the steamer for the Philippines, Lieutenant Booth had to answer the question as to whether he was "married or single." Miss Millet decided which it should be.

Bill Provides for Governor's Cabinet

A bill has been presented at the State House by Representative Samuel H. Milbram, signed by Russel A. Wood, to abolish the Council offices of Lieutenant-Governor, Secretary, Treasurer, Auditor and Attorney-General and to create nine State departments, as follows, to act as a Governor's Cabinet and perform the functions of the abolished offices: Department of State, law, auditing department, agriculture and forestry, public institutions, militia and police, corporations and labor and a department of health.

Red Sox Manager's Contract in Cupid League Has No Release Clause.

Bill Carrigan, the Red Sox manager, and his bride are in seclusion. Maybe they are in Boston, maybe not. And they propose to remain in seclusion for the present.

Friends may try to find them, but their efforts will receive no aid from the newlyweds. Mr. and Mrs. Carrigan do not care to see any friends, thank you. Of course, it is very nice and thoughtful to wish to call and all that, but really, just now—

Some of the baseball reporters were wont to call the manager of the Red Sox Uncle Bill. That will doubtless be stopped. Bill is old enough to be an uncle—in fact, an infant may be an uncle, but the title at least implies that the person referred to is at least in the middle age.

But Bill is not an old man, nor even a middle-aged man. Bill, according to information furnished by the Red Sox officials, is only thirty-one years old, weighs 187 pounds and is five feet ten inches tall.

Bill has another nickname, "Rough." Out of deference to Mrs. Carrigan, this nickname will also be dropped, at least for the present. Everyone is inclined to make things pleasant for the bride and groom.

The AMERICAN is printing today a very fine picture of Mrs. Carrigan. It will be seen at a glance that Bill is a wise man. Mrs. Carrigan looks to be a very charming young woman—and her friends say her actions coincide with her looks.

They were old schoolmate friends—Bill and his bride. She was Miss Beulah Bartlett of Lewiston, which is Carrigan's home town.

Philadelphia Awaits Rev. 'Billy' Sunday

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 2.—The Rev. "Billy" Sunday will arrive here late this afternoon and his nine weeks' evangelistic campaign will open tomorrow morning in a tabernacle especially built for the purpose. The temporary church will seat 20,000 persons. Inside every door is a stove. Women with infant children may leave them in the nursery, where each baby will be checked like an overcoat. Beyond the tabernacle a temporary restaurant, where it will be possible to feed from 800 to 1,000 an hour, has been erected.

HOLD 4, CHARGE $18,000 FRAUDS

In the arrest of four men charged with using the mails in a scheme to defraud, the Federal authorities believe they have apprehended a band of swindlers whose operations in the past six months have amounted to over $18,000, with victims in all parts of the country.

The prisoners are Bedros M. Tomajian of the Amber Tobacco Company at No. 7 Water street, Louis S. Harpootian of the Royal Cigar Company at No. 110 State street, Carnig S. Harpootian of the Regie Tobacco Company at No. 45 Bromfield street and Meran M. Tomajian of the Eastern Tobacco Company at No. 14 Federal street.

The fraud is alleged to have been in connection with inducements offered to persons to become salesmen for cigars, cigarettes and tobacco and in securing deposits for outfits.

The possibilities of the tobacco business were falsely represented, it is alleged. The embryo salesmen would receive a sample case worth only $2.25 upon the payment of $5.50, the authorities charge.

$100 Legacy for All Old Baker Help

Every employe who worked for the late William H. Baker of Waltham for the last ten years is bequeathed $100 in the will which was filed in the Middlesex Probate Court at East Cambridge today, and if Mary Cecilia Donahue is among the number she is to get $1,000.

The will provides that after the death of his wife, Mrs. Charlotte A. Baker, the income of $50,000 is to be used to maintain the William H. Baker chair of gynecology at the Harvard Medical School, but that this chair is to be kept separate from the surgical and obstetrical chairs there. If Harvard University will not accept the bequest on such terms the income is to go to the Free Hospital for Women in Brookline.

50,000 Men to Honor Feast of Holy Name

In honor of the feast of the Holy Name, fifty thousand men, members of the Holy Name Society, will tomorrow attend services, morning and evening, in the churches of the archdiocese of Boston. Cardinal O'Connell will officiate at the Cathedral services which, in the morning, will be at 7 o'clock and in the afternoon at 4.

Braves Thin Ice to Rescue Boy

Braving thin ice on hands and knees, Patrolman Charles J. Riley of the Middlesex Fells station of the metropolitan police rescued Warren Coughlin, ten, of No. 55 Norcross street, Arlington, after the boy had broken through the ice on the Mystic River, under the River street bridge, Arlington.

Omega Oil FOR Swellings & Inflammation
Rub Omega Oil gently over the place that hurts. Then soak a piece of flannel with the Oil, lay it on the painful part and cover with a piece of dry flannel. This simple treatment usually gives quick relief. Trial bottle 10c.

INSTALL O'KEEFE AS SALEM MAYOR

Matthias J. O'Keefe was inducted into office as Mayor of Salem at 10 o'clock today, at the special meeting of the City Council, to take the place of Mayor John F. Hurley, recalled after serving two years of his three-year term.

The recalled Mayor of silk hat fame declares he is doing less worrying than the people who are still in the city government, especially department heads. It is generally conceded that O'Keefe will find new heads for at least the fire and police departments, perhaps others.

"Watch me come back," urged "Auctioneer Hurley," as he now styles himself. "I am going to be vindicated. Today I go back to selling things at auction for people—and I can get a higher price as an auctioneer than any other man in the State. I am laying my plans already for the next campaign. I will be my own campaign manager—sail my own ship—and as to successful vindication—just watch me.

"Then again, that silk hat which caused so much objection here in Salem—watch the silk hat. It's still with me," and he pushed it back a little more rakishly. "The silk hat is famous. It's so famous that no one in the States, outside of Salem, will know, until after I am Mayor again, that there was any interruption in the regime. Ask anyone outside of Salem who is Mayor here and he'll say, 'Silk Hat Hurley.'"

Held in New Haven Ambulance 'Plot'

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—Dennis Murray, a foreman for the New Haven road, will face trial on a perjury charge, following his arrest in a campaign against the so-called "Ambulance Chasers' Trust."

According to the police, a confession has been obtained from Murray revealing that an organization of influential lawyers exists for the purpose of suing large corporations, particularly the New Haven road, for slight or imaginary injuries in accident cases. The members of the "trust" generally have settled these cases out of court for large damages, fifty per cent. of which invariably went to the lawyers.

Murray's alleged perjury was committed at a coroner's inquest, a year ago, of the death of James Fletcher, a lineman, who was accidentally electrocuted. Murray testified that, although it was his daily custom to warn linemen of live wires, he failed to do this the day Fletcher was killed. The case was settled out of court for $20,000.

Sentence Quincy Man.

A sentence of eight months in the House of Correction in the Norfolk Superior Court at Dedham was given Charles Palrvi, alias Mauro Rubino, of Quincy, who was convicted of charges of receiving money illegally, made by Rose Smith, alias Florence Adams. Rose Smith was sentenced to Sherborn.

COPE CASE BRINGS 'SLAVE GIRL' PLEA

Miss Edith Hatch, the plucky Malden woman who foiled two holdup men by throwing red pepper into their faces, today told the story of how she did it and suggested red pepper as an effective weapon for women and girls to carry to protect them from either attack or insult.

Miss Hatch revealed the fact that as a result of Malden's "crime wave" many women in that city have been alarmed and have carried pepper, small knives, hatpins, and even "ammonia guns," as methods of protection.

"But personally I believe in the efficiency of red pepper for this purpose," said Miss Hatch today. "It certainly had its effect in my own case.

"I decided to carry the red pepper after reading of the many holdups in this city within the past few weeks. I had it in my coat pocket always.

SEIZED BY TWO MEN.

"Last night about 9.20 I came out on an Elevated car and got off at Salem and Auburn streets. This is not far from my home at No. 173 Salem street.

"Hardly had I stepped off when the two men grabbed me. The noise the car made in starting convinced me that an outcry would be futile.

"My handbag was about my wrist, and it was for this the men struggled.

"I at once thought of my red pepper. I reached down in my coat pocket with my free hand, brought it out in a twinkling and threw it full in the faces of my assailants.

"It was a coup that caught them unawares. They were so surprised they gave themselves over to coughing and choking and sputtering, and then they fled.

"It must have been very painful to them. It was fully effective.

"I had felt sort of foolish in putting red pepper in my pocket, but simply did it as a precautionary measure. I am glad I did so, and I shall not go without my red pepper again. It make me feel safer.

STOCK UP ON RED PEPPER.

"If more women carried such a weapon as red pepper there would be less likelihood of their ever being attacked. Already as a result of the many crimes Malden is having, the women out here are carrying small knives, hatpins and ammonia guns and other weapons. But I favor red pepper."

The attempt to rob Miss Hatch was one of three similar crimes in Malden within twenty-four hours. Mrs. Alonzo A. West of Rockland avenue, Malden, while walking along Hawthorne street, was held up by a man, who used a revolver in forcing her to give up her purse, containing $3. He escaped.

The third case was that of Miss Doris Brown, daughter of Frank P. Brown of Las Casas street, Malden. Miss Brown is a graduate of the Malden High school, where she took a chase and fled.

While on her way home two men followed her. She ran and they pursued. Being a good sprinter, she managed to keep ahead of them, and it was only when she turned into the yard of her home that they quit the case and fled.

MISS E. MAE FRENCH, on committee for Unitarian Girls' Masquerade at Westwood tonight.

WESTWOOD GIRLS IN MASQUERADE

Many interesting features have been planned for the first New Year's party and dance to be held this evening in the Town Hall, Westwood, by the Unitarian Girls' Club of Westwood. The event will be in the form of a masquerade and fancy costume dance.

One of the secrets will be the names of the young men and young women who are to lead the grand march. Even club members don't know, and of course everybody is curious. The matrons will include Mrs. Charles H. Ellis, Mrs. S. C. French and Miss Nellie M. Gay. The committee is composed of Miss Blanche I. Draper, Miss Myrna A. Draper, Miss Myrna A. Draper, Miss A. Mae French and Miss Mary F. Ellis.

The officers of the club are: Miss Dorothy Place, president; Miss Ida G. George, vice-president; Mrs. Samuel J. Cairns, secretary; Miss Myrna A. Draper, treasurer.

Reproduction of 'Mona Lisa' Here

The famous reproduction of the "Mona Lisa" has been sent to Boston for safekeeping during the war, by John R. Eyre of Middlesex, England. The painting is now hanging in the directors' room of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts.

SHERWIN'S WILL CUTS OFF BRITON

The will of General Thomas Sherwin, who was chairman of the board of directors of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company, was filed in Suffolk Probate Court today. It has an unusual provision which precludes Philip Lee-Warner, the general's British son-in-law, from having any interest in or control of a $10,000 bequest to Mrs. Mary King Sherwin Lee-Warner, the general's daughter. The entire estate, it is thought, will be worth at least a million dollars.

The will was drawn in 1907, before the brilliant international marriage which made Miss Sherwin the daughter-in-law of Sir William Lee-Warner of London.

The will mentions Mrs. Lee-Warner as "my daughter who is shortly to be married" and specifies that the legacy is "in her own right and free from any interest or control of her husband." This legacy is to take precedence over all other bequests in the will.

There were no public bqusts. The general's widow, Mrs. Isabel Fiske Sherwin, a well-known matron in society and whom he calls "my beloved wife," is named as executrix and is to receive the residue of the estate after $10,000 bequests to the general's other children: Mrs. Eleanor Goodwin of Dedham, Thomas Edwards Sherwin, assistant treasurer of the Calumet & Hecla Company; Robert Waterston Sherwin, Miss Anne Isabel Sherwin and Edward Vassall Sherwin, all of Boston.

Boston society was much interested in the pre-nuptial provision regarding the bequest to Mrs. Lee-Warner, who is listed in the social register with the other members of the general's family.

General Sherwin died on December 19 at No. 150 Commonwealth avenue as a result of a shock. He was seventy-five years old.

Science May Get Pickering's Brain

Dr. Edward Pickering of Harvard is one of three prominent members of the American Association for the Advancement of Science who announces having under contemplation the bequeathig of his brain for scientific inquiry.

The association will seek to induce scientists, captains of industry and political leaders to permit their brains to be examined after death. At the meeting of the association at San Francisco in August every delegate will be asked to bequeath his brain to specialists.

Dr. Henry Ekluner of the Academy of Natural Science, Philadelphia, and Dr. L. O. Howard, Washington, permanent secretary of the association, already contemplate bequeathing their brains.

"Science has had the opportunity to study the brains of plenty of murderers," declared Dr. Howard, "but it is not often that a brain of a man really of high calibre may be compared with others.

CHILDREN GIVE THAW LOVING CUP

MANCHESTER, N. H., Jan. 2.—Twenty-three children of the North End of Manchester gave Harry Thaw a silver loving cup as a New Year's gift. The cup was inscribed:

HARRY KENDALL THAW,
January 1, 1915.
From His Little Friends in Manchester, N. H.

It is needless to add that the fugitive from Matteawan prizes it highly. He held it up when the little spokesman among his guests presented it bashfully, and his eyes fairly beamed with delight.

Thaw probably never had a more enjoyable time, at least, that's what he told the children when he responded, and they clapped and cheered. It was the most rollicking kind of a New Year's celebration, and it was planned with all of the secrecy of a surprise party.

It topped off the first day of the New Year in a most delightful way for the man whose case has moved the legal machinery of the nation. Thaw romped with the boys and girls with the abandon and glee of a schoolboy. It was a novel sight.

On Hallowe'en night the boys and girls of the aristocratic families in the neighborhood, where the young Pittsburgh millionaire has made his home since October, expressed their admiration for Thaw by serenading him. They came under the windows and then trooped into the house, and a few lively hours were spent.

GAVE MANY SKATES.

On Christmas night the same little admirers went to the Clement mansion and sang carols and were admitted again. Mr. Thaw had won their friendship by a variety of attentions, and they have not lost an opportunity to express their admiration for him.

He has bought them skates galore and sleds. He has watched them skate and coast, and he gave boys in the neighborhood funds to equip a camp, where they played Indians and trappers. Since Winter began Thaw has bought 150 pairs of skates at a local hardware shop, to say nothing of toys for children.

Little wonder then that the boys and girls should get together and plan a surprise of their own. They contributed all their spare nickels, dimes and quarters for weeks, until they had enough for the loving cup.

On New Year's night they put on their best suits and dresses and marched on the Thaw home in a body. Thaw played the piano, and the boys and girls sang and played all sorts of games.

Their eyes sparkled when they saw the table that had been prepared for them by the housekeeper. Cut flowers sprinkled the cloth. There were favors for all and a tempting feast.

SISTER HELPS ENTERTAIN.

Mr. Thaw's sister, Mrs. Geoffrey Whitney, of Milton, Mass., the former Countess of Yarmouth, was there with Mr. Whitney to assist Mr. Thaw in entertaining his guests. Mr. Connor, a young New York attorney, was also there, and so was High Sheriff Holman A. Drew, senior of Thaw's two guards.

After the children left the older people played cards. Boston and New York correspondents were invited to attend and were warmly greeted by Mr. Thaw, who introduced them to his guests.

Reports from Philadelphia that Mr. Thaw's mother, Mrs. Copley Thaw, had conferred there with Alexander C. Knox, senior counsel for her son, indicates that there may be developments here soon.

NEW YEAR PROVES GREAT DAY FOR BOXERS IN MANY RINGS THROUGHOUT COUNTRY

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTING NEWS

WELSH AND WHITE BOUT PUT OVER TO GIVE BRITISH TITLE HOLDER MORE TIME

'BIG ED' WALSH TRYING HARD FOR COMEBACK IN 1915

Ed Walsh, for years the backbone of the White Sox pitching staff, believes he will be as effective on the slab in 1915 as he was in 1907. And he believes a thorough rest for his arm and the forgetting of baseball cares will accomplish his aim.

Here is the way Ed tried to win back his arm in the Winter of 1913-14:

Tossed a baseball every day from the close of the 1913 season until he started for California on the 1914 training trip.

Thought baseball; talked baseball; worried about his arm throughout the cold months.

Result—Walsh might as well have been an armless pitcher. His arm was no better in midsummer than it was on the day it gave way.

This is how Walsh is trying to win back his arm during the Winter of 1914-15:

FORGETS BASEBALL.

Hasn't had a baseball in his hand since the close of the season.

Refuses to discuss baseball with any one. Refuses to read about baseball. Declines to worry about baseball or his arm.

Is spending the greater part of his time in the woods of New Hampshire hunting and shooting deer. Says that the rugged life is improving him physically, is making him harder, tougher.

Result to his arm—???

It is a most unique, a most remarkable method of nursing back the old-time strength of that wonderful right arm of his.

Shooting deer may be a far cry from fanning Ty Cobb, but Walsh believes that the one will lead to the other.

And instead of spending his time in fretting about whether his arm will again be good and right, or not in back by the strenuous exercise of pitching to a catcher, the big fellow is spending the Winter in the strenuous life of the chase.

RETURNS FROM HUNTING TRIP.

In a letter received by the AMERICAN from Walsh he said that he had just returned to Meriden, Conn., his home, from a hunting trip at Berlin, N. H.

The big fellow added that he was home for the holidays only and that the first of the year would find him back in the woods roughing it.

"It's perfect physical condition along with a real rest for the arm is the fruitful right that the once great star is seeking this Winter.

But read what Walsh says in his letter:

"I'm trying a new stunt this Winter and I think it's going to do me a lot of good, if it doesn't, old effectiveness will return. Please knock wood. I haven't been worrying about baseball or my arm since the close of the season. Every one says that I would do more harm than good to worry, but then it's much easier to say "don't worry" than it is to do it.

HASN'T SEEN BASEBALL.

Last season people told me the same thing, but I was surprised just the same. I had an idea that maybe I could work my arm back into shape and I did something with a baseball almost every day. Since I couldn't do all the things that I used to do with the ball I worried all the more.

But this year that doesn't go. I've been up in the woods and these pictures will show you that I had pretty good luck. When a fellow is hunting the kind of game that we did he has plenty of time to worry about whether he is going to have a good arm the next season as he did when he was at his best.

This Winter am going to pass without a baseball in my hand. I'm going to spend as much time as I can in the woods, for that gets you in great shape. Then if the long rest to the arm does what I believe it will it will take but a short time in the Spring to get me all right.

WILL PROVE TEST.

So well find out whether a tramp through the woods on the trail of a deer, a quiet but accurate shot, the strength necessary to drag the carcass of the deer to the camp, is a better way of winning back a lost arm than a daily tryout of the injured member.

Walsh Gives Up Plan for Outlaw League

DANVILLE, Ill., Jan. 2.—Connie Walsh, for ten years a figure in the Three I League and manager of the Danville baseball club in 1913, and part of this year, has abandoned his plans for the organization of a new league to be composed of Illinois and Indiana cities not now connected with organized baseball. Walsh had planned to own the Danville franchise, but he received little encouragement here, as Danville wants baseball of the Three I calibre when it gets ready to have another team. Walsh says he will try to land the Peoria managerial berth, just vacated by Clarence Rowland.

St. Paul Cancels Game with Harvard

The St. Paul-Harvard varsity hockey game has been cancelled, but a game has been arranged with Dartmouth on February 10. A game has also been arranged with the Harvard freshmen team to be played February 13, and the B. A. A. team will probably be played the following week.

WELSH AND WHITE SHOULD PUT UP BRILLIANT RING BATTLE

By JACK CONWAY.

BOXING lovers should witness a remarkable exhibition of ring science when Freddy Welsh, the world's lightweight champion, and Charley White of Chicago meet in a ten-round bout in New York on January 26. The contest will bring together two of the world's cleverest glove men and a brilliant battle is assured.

White is sure to make the champion fight it his very best. There are few American lightweights who are in the same class with the Chicago boy. Charley is a fine boxer and is also blessed with a deadly left hook. It is a punch similar to the one which enabled "Kid" McCoy to win world-wide fame, and if White is able to score with it the Welshman will have a merry time holding his own with his opponent.

The tussle was originally scheduled to be decided on January 12, but the date has been set back to January 26. Jimmy Johnston, manager of Madison Square Garden, asserts that the reason why he postponed the show was because he could not get in which to get into condition. He says that the champion informed him that he would like to have a little more time as possible to prepare for his clash with White.

This, of course, makes very good reading and there never was a boxing promoter who expected very strenuously to publicity. The real reason for postponing the bout, in our humble opinion, is to stir up interest in the encounter.

WHITE fought "Young" Shugrue in New York last Tuesday and it would not be good policy to have him appear in the big city again inside of such a short period. The delay will also give White an opportunity to advertise the match in championship style. Then, too, the public will be informed that White declares that he will land a dream smash inside of the limit. Welsh will then come back and assert that he intends to prove that he is a real champion and that he will try and score a knockout punch inside of the limit.

It was ever thus in the boxing game, and also in the baseball world. We recently had a bout with one of baseball press agent story in the sale of the New York Yankees. The deal was undoubtedly virtually closed several weeks ago, but no definite announcement was made by the owners of the Yankees were desirous of getting plenty of free advertisement before they completed the final articles of the purchase.

But as such little things bring the iron men into the box office the promoters resort to them.

WITH the Welsh-White bout almost a month away, it will be foolish to pick a winner. We believe, however, that Welsh will enter the ring at his best. The Welsh who faces White will be a different boxer from the one who was recently beaten by "Young" Shugrue in New York. And when the Welshman is at his best, he is unbeatable.

SAM LANGFORD will probably be matched to meet Sam McVey in a twenty-round ring bout, to be staged in New Orleans this month. McVey is a big favorite with the "boys" in the Southern city as a result of his recent victory over Harry Wills. Langford has also quite a following in New Orleans. Consequently a bout between the two Sams should be a good drawing card.

MATTY BALDWIN will not back out of Jess Willard's way when the boxing game is resumed in Boston next Spring. There are a number of glove men who will start on the trail of the Charlestown veteran who holds the lightweight championship of New England. Gilbert Gallant and Eddie Murphy will be one Job again. They will be reinforced by Freddy Yelle and Frankie Mack.

Yelle and Mack are two of the most promising young lightweights in the East and they are entitled to recognition from Baldwin, Gallant and Murphy. The members of this trio avoided a bout with Yelle claiming that he was not a high grade performer. Freddy, however, proved his true worth in his battle with Welsh in which he fought a hard, fast fight and won many admirers by his slashing work.

JUST now Frankie Mack is planning for numerous bouts in eastern rings. The Beachmont boy fought a ten-round draw with Willie Beecher in New York the other night. This is a performance to be proud of as Beecher has exchanged punches with most of the star lightweights and has usually given a good account of himself.

MACK seems to be followed by a jinx, especially when he is in the line for a big bout. The Atlas A. A. was planning to match Mack with Matty Baldwin last Summer and in order to keep him before the public the Triple A organization pitted him against Charley Beyers of the South End in the feature event of an all-star show. It was believed that Mack would dispose of Beyers with but little trouble.

Beyers was not to be beaten as easily as was expected and landed a sweet wallop early in the contest which sent Mack down for the count of nine. The Beachmont youth came back and outpointed his rival for the rest of the skirmish, but the best he could expect under the circumstances was a draw. If Mack had beaten Beyers decisively, he would have been matched with Baldwin, and if he had shown well against the Charlestown favorite his position in New England flatic circles would have been assured.

Levinsky and Smith In 12 Slow Rounds

WATERBURY, Ct., Jan. 2.—Battling Levinsky and Gunboat Smith of New York, stalled and wrestled through twelve slow and uninteresting rounds here before the Waterbury Athletic Club.

Smith tried to fight, but Levinsky refused to uncover and the crowd hissed its disapproval. Smith earned the fifth, ninth and last rounds, the others being even.

Tom McCarty Stops Fritts in 3 Rounds

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—Tom McCarty, the Montana heavyweight, knocked out "Sailor" Fred Fritts of Brooklyn in the third round of a ten-round contest here.

Three times in the first round Fritts went down from McCarty's right hook, once in the second and twice in the third and final round. Fritts had nothing to offer in return, except rare gameness.

DID BARRY MAKE COLLINS GREAT?

What is to be Eddie Collins' future with the Chicago White Sox? Will he be the same fielding wonder as when he played with the Philadelphia Athletics or will his general all-round work deteriorate? Fans are asking themselves these questions, but to date none has vouchsafed an answer. Time alone will tell the tale.

Why should Collins' work suffer as a Chicagoan in comparison with that which he had on tap while striving for honor and glory for the standard of the House of Mack? Well, Jack Barry is the answer. Jack will not be his running mate as has been the case ever since 1909, and be it said here and now that Barry has been conceded by rival ball players, press and public, to be the best shortstop in the American League.

DARBY THE WONDER.

Of course Collins' adherents will tell you that he made Barry the wonder worker he is, insisting that if Jack had had anyone else working in second instead of the peerless Eddie he would be rated only a fair performer. To all of which the ugly ha ha is given by Barry's thousands of supporters, who tell you that it was proved time and again during the past five or six years that the Athletics were a great machine without Collins working at second, while at any time Barry was in the game with the White Sox, but a bad shortstop, by any means. He's spectacular, almost as much so as Barry at times. But unlike the Machite star, Weaver is very independent, he's not nearly so dependable as Barry. And this same inconsistency may work the undoing of Collins as the peer of second-suckers.

WEAVER HAS CLASS.

There's no disputing the fact that the Barry-Collins combination, or the Collins-Barry combine, if you will, set the pace for all shortstop-second baseman duos in baseball, and it's extremely doubtful if Collins will fare as well as a Sox as when he was a Mackman.

Of course, there's another side to the question. For the sake of argument let's grant that Collins was responsible for Barry's great record as a performer. Even then the fans of Boston may come to pass that Eddie can help Weaver rid himself of his inconsistency. He is a good all-round shortstop, and it's a safe bet that Weaver-Collins will never o'ershadow Barry-Collins.

But you can't forget Barry, the man with the great baseball brain, the wonderful hands and feet that seem to work in perfect unison with his master mind. Incomparable shortstop, and it's a safe bet that Weaver-Collins will never o'ershadow Barry-Collins.

Sport Questions and Answers

Here are a few questions and answers by George E. Phair which should be of interest to sport "fans."

Q.—What is a featherweight?
A.—Generally a lightweight.

Q.—What is a heavyweight?
A.—Generally a false alarm.

Sporting Editor, Boston AMERICAN:
In reading sport pages of the AMERICAN sport pages, I noticed that Bobby McLean, the Chicago lightweight, is a scrapper that is a prospect. Consequently he can, no longer claim the amateur championship. Who is now recognized as the title holder?
Dedham. JAMES O.

Aaron O'Sicky, the Cleveland amateur skater, is the new world's amateur champion.

O'Sicky won the second largest number of points on the international circuit last season, being runner up to McLean.

He unfortunately steps into McLean's shoes and will be considered champion until he meets with defeat.

Sporting Editor, Boston AMERICAN:
Kindly state what the world's amateur record for a mile is and name of the title holder? Also give world's mark for 440 yards.
Somerville. D. S.

John Paul Jones, while running for Cornell, covered a mile in 4m. 12 4-5s. This record-breaking performance was made in the Harvard Stadium on May 31, 1913. M. W. Long holds the world's record for 440 yards. He ran this distance in 49s.

Sporting Editor, Boston AMERICAN:
To settle an argument, some one who is the lightweight champion of New England. Also inform me who is the bantamweight holder in this section of the country.
DEEP HOOK."

Matty Baldwin is the honorable lightweight champion of dear old New England, while Al Shubert is recognized as the best of the local bantamweights.

Sporting Editor, Boston AMERICAN:
What is the world's professional outdoor record for a mile on skates?
Needham. A. K.

John S. Johnson has the best mark. He covered a mile in 2m. 35 2-5s. at Montreal, Canada, on January 28, 1890.

Sporting Editor, Boston AMERICAN:
I would appreciate it if you would state in Saturday's AMERICAN the name of the winners of the big six-day bicycle race held in Madison Square Garden in New York shortly after the grind at the Fenway.
BAY STATE BILLY.

Well, Bay Bird, you evidently must have taken a short nap after the Arena race. Otherwise you would have known that Comiet and Grenda captured the honor berth in the Garden race, by doing what they set up a new world's mark, covering 2,735 miles.

Sporting Editor, Boston AMERICAN:
Kindly settle a dispute between a couple of fans. Who is the greatest baseball player? Whether Charley Brickley scored a point for Harvard in the game against Yale last November.
"PIGSKIN."

The Everett wonder took his place in the Crimson lineup late in the fourth period and kicked a goal from scrimmage after Harvard had carried the ball over the Eli line after a fine piece of strategy in which Brickley played a prominent part, the drop-kicking king failing well behind the line of scrimmage on several occasions and in this way causing the Yale players to believe that he was going to try a goal from the field.

Sporting Editor, Boston AMERICAN:
Kindly inform me if Jack Barry is going to take part in any athletic meets this Winter.
FRANK D. Bedford.

Power is in Boston and just now he is getting into condition for a strenuous season on the indoor track. He will represent the B. A. A. and is expected to win many prizes in the big athletic meets. There are few milers who have anything on the Unicorn flash.

Sporting Editor, Boston AMERICAN:
What was the fastest time ever made by Dan Patch in a pacing race and where was the mark made?
P. DAILY, Dorchester.

Dan Patch paced a mile in 1m. 55s. at Memphis, Tenn., on November 11, 1905.

Sporting Editor, Boston AMERICAN:
In reading sport news of St. Louis papers I noted that Jack Sadler had been killed in a log bunk a number of years ago. Is there any truth to the report?
"PUSTO LOVER."

The veteran ring star is very much alive today. He is located in Yonkers, N. Y., where he is employed by the Yonkers Herald as its boxing expert. His knowledge of the fine points of the ring sport have enabled him to score a big success in the field of journalism.

National Commission Meeting Put Over

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—Although President Ban Johnson has at last succeeded in putting through the deal for the sale of the Highlanders to Colonel Ruppert and Captain Huston, he is still in town and said he would remain here a few days. He also announced that the annual meeting of the national commission would not be held until January 25, in compliance with the wishes of President J. K. Tener of the National League.

Amateur Boxers in Battles at Quincy

There will be an amateur boxing tournament at the Quincy A. A. in Quincy next Tuesday evening. A large number of entries have been received and some slashing bouts are expected. Besides the tussles in the ring, dances, which are at 110, 120 and 140 pounds, there will be a special match between Harry Carlson of Brockton and John J. Sullivan of Boston.

Cowan, c		c, Hicks
Schoen, r.w		l.w., Foote
J. Humphreys, c.p		c. p., Huntington

Referees—Dr. G. W. Tingley and H. Foster, Jr. Time—20-minute halves.

The Bakerless Tigers tackle the B. A. A. seven at the Arena tonight, and the best game of the season is looked for.

The Tigers already have displayed remarkable form, securing victories over the Crescent A. C. and Exeter, and showing they will be among the leading aspirants for the intercollegiate championship, which they won last Winter.

The Humphreys brothers, Princeton's big stars this season, are both products of St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H. W. Humphreys has been heralded as being a second Foote, and, while this is doubted by the followers of the Canadian game in this city, his work will be watched more closely than any man on the surface.

The team will not be as strong as it was hoped, as Pete Sortwell has given up the game, but Carley Foote, who announced his retirement with last Tuesday night's game with Toronto University, has been prevailed upon to play.

It is doubtful if Captain Huntington will play all through the contest, as he has not fully recovered from an injury received in football last Fall.

"Bob" Clifford is another veteran who will be missing, he received an ugly cut on the leg above the knee in the Toronto game and has been ordered not to play for another week.

Lynn High Girls in Basketball League

Fifty girl students of the Lynn English High School have made application for places on the basketball team which is to be organized.

They represented the three lower classes in the school, the senior class having decided not to organize this year.

Miss Bertha Cobb, coach of the girls, will select the teams after several practice sessions. Two leagues will be organized, one for the first teams and one for the second teams of the different classes.

The winners of the two leagues will play for the class championship at the conclusion of the schedule.

Kling Threatens to Return to Baseball

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Jan. 2—John Kling, former catcher for the Chicago and Cincinnati Nationals, may return to baseball during the coming season. Kling, who is visiting friends here, said today:

"I have received an offer recently from Cincinnati and several from the Federal League. If I return to baseball it will be with Cincinnati.

BOWLING NOTES

FRED HARTFORD in behalf of his brother "Bo" Hartford states that he will cover Sammy Green's $50 to bind a match between the two star bowlers as soon as Green will agree to roll ten of the strings at the Murray alleys and ten at any other alleys suitable to both bowlers.

Fred states that "Bo" is ready to clinch the match as soon as Green agrees to the above conditions as the Murray star is now hitting the pins better than he ever did before.

* * *

THE women bowlers started the year with over twenty couples taking part in the weekly games at the Arch Street alleys.

* * *

THE Louis Cigar League is fast developing into a very close struggle only one point separating the Braves, Athletics and Tiger teams.

* * *

SINCE Bill Leeman joined the Cubs one of the boys bought in has displaced Mickey Mokes from the high individual average. Bill is now leading the league with 102 average and threatens to bust this in the near future.

* * *

DR. JAMES V. MANSFIELD, Dr. Joseph L. Sullivan, James E. Norton and Attorney Patrick B. Walsh will each enter at least twice a week in knocking down pins in Burns and Murphy's alleys on Dudley street, Roxbury. A loving cup is offered by Jim Murphy to the man who bowls the greatest number of pins from Christmas Day to Washington's Birthday. The odds are on the two doctors.

* * *

CHARLIE COYNE promises to be on deck next Monday night with the Giants. Charlie recently returned from New York where he met many of the star Gotham bowlers.

* * *

W. CLARK is now leading the Jordan Marsh League with an average of 99. His nearest teammate is about six points behind him.

* * *

A picked team from the Jordan Marsh League will bowl the strong Fort Andrews team at the Fort the latter part of the month. The soldiers have a very strong five this season and the Boston team will have to go some if they hope to win as can find if they expect to come home with a win.

* * *

SMART, who formerly bowled with the Hatters' team of the Suburban League, will be a great asset to the Chauncy team as soon as he hits his old stride. The old Suburban bowler rolled for the Chauncy team Wednesday night and made a creditable showing.

* * *

SHAW, of the Ford team, still continues to lead the Automobile League with the average of 94.

* * *

WITH Yale and Princeton putting the seal of approval on bowling as a University sport it is likely that other colleges will soon follow the good example and adopt the pin game as an intercollegiate pastime. Devotees of bowling at Harvard are clamoring for the Crimson students to take up the game and many favor the establishment of an intercollegiate league.

* * *

THE Harvard bowlers in the meantime are bowling as Independent rollers at the Ramsy's Dunsters alleys and the Leavitt and Pierce parlors.

* * *

THE Suburban K. of P. bowling league is getting more exciting every meeting, the three points now separate the first three teams and next week's match may develop a new leader. The league has decided to hold a ladies' night at the Sumner Street alleys on the night of January 12.

* * *

FRED WILLIAMS, of the New Square alleys is offering a cup to the bowler scoring the most pins for a four non-consecutive string total next week.

* * *

MANAGER ARAPE of the Bowdoin Square alleys is confident that his team will win the championship of the Greater Boston League. The Square team is now leading the league by four points. Chris Gordon, the champion left-handed bowler of the State, is leading his team for the individual average with a score of 108. Sam Page, another member of the Bowdoin team, keeps Gordon on the jump for the honors all the time. He is now trailing his leader with 106 for an average.

1915 HARD YEAR FOR BALL STARS

Baseball's 1915 season is showing all prospects of being one of the worst ever known for the players. There will be hundreds of them out of jobs or in mighty cheap ones before the season is fully under way.

This peculiar situation is brought about by the fact that both of the major leagues will retrench. The National intends to cut down its limit to twenty-one men by May 1. The American League probably will follow suit. If the junior organization doesn't cut that far it surely will cut to some extent.

The minor leaguers have got to trim their sails as well. They do not want any more men. Their chief anxiety is to get rid of some of the men that burden their payroll right now.

What is to become of all of these players?

The majors can send a few of them back to the minors, whence they came. Others will have to be released outright. What will become of them?

The Feds do not want any young material. They have all of that their eight clubs need now. Indeed, it wouldn't be surprising if some of the Fed teams registered a lot of releases before the Spring list is far advanced. What the Feds want most of all is a bunch of well-established stars. These prove the best weapons with which to fight organized baseball.

The youngster coming up is all right in his way, but just now nobody appears to have any time to waste in the developing process. The finished product is about the only thing that can be called really useful under the new order of things.

Manager Mcgraw of the Giants has fifty-three men under contract now. The Cubs have thirty-five, and it appears as if all of the other teams in the National League are about as heavily loaded. Everybody must cut to twenty-one by May 1. Think of what that means!

Roger Bresnahan, newly appointed manager of the Cubs, is facing one of the toughest tasks ever put up to a leader. He is expected to build up a winning team, and just when the formative process is at its height he will be compelled to let a big bunch of his surplus material, which may conduct a cellar or two in embryo, go back to the minors.

Of course, it's an even break all over the circuit as far as the limit is concerned, but the punch hits Roger just a little harder than it does any of the others, because he has a team that has been slipping.

Henry Wall Elected Lynn Eleven Captain

Henry Wall, left halfback, has been elected captain of the English High School football team. At a meeting of the team Thursday Stewart MacDonald, who played right halfback on the team for the past two years, was elected captain, defeating Kerig, the popular fullback of the team.

Principal Jackson, on hearing of the result of the election Thursday, ordered the team to hold another meeting and to elect a new captain, claiming that MacDonald was behind in his studies and was ineligible.

"The Rabbit's" Column By Walter J. Maranville HORTSTOP OF THE BRAVES

My newspaper friends tell me the main thing in this business is to write about men and things that men talk about. So don't blame me if I say a little more about "Wild Bill" Donovan, a man all the baseball world is talking about.

Bill led the Providence team to a championship in the International League last season. In much the same way that Stallings led the Braves to a victory in the National League.

* * *

Donovan has now been appointed manager of the New York Americans, and I look for him to make good. Bill has the gameness and the experience and the suave stuff, and, I am told, he knows how to hand out a few cutting remarks when the occasion requires.

* * *

While with Detroit helping the Tigers to win pennants, Donovan locked horns on many occasions with the Athletics. There was no love lost between "Wild Bill" and the White Elephants. All that Donovan had to do was toss his glove on the field and the feud was renewed. Frequently Bill got so cutting in his remarks that the umpires put him off the coaching lines.

* * *

The greatest game that Bill Donovan ever pitched was late in the season of 1907. The race was close between the Athletics and Detroits, the latter coming with an awful rush at the finish. On the last Monday of the season the Tigers were to have made their final appearance in Philadelphia in a double-header. The Athletics started out as if for a slaughter. They hammered Donovan all over the field for several innings. Then Bill started to pitch underhand and the slugging stopped. Then Bill's fielding stopped hitting the ball the Tigers started. The pitcher went to the bench, but Donovan pitched on. Waddell was called upon and a home run by Cobb tied the score in the ninth inning.

* * *

Then Eddie Plank went to the rescue. For eight more innings Donovan held the Athletics in check. In the eleventh inning both teams scored.

* * *

Inning after inning the thrilling play went on. Harry Davis came near winning the game, upon which a pennant appeared to rest, by a long drive to the left of center field. Bush Crawford, who was playing centre field, started after the ball, which went into the crowd.

* * *

Manager Jennings claimed that a policeman interfered with Crawford. There was an awful mixup between the teams, and Umpires O'Loughlin and Connolly. Something was happening in a spectacular way. Over at first base Donovan and Monte Cross were being held apart by their teammates.

* * *

Finally O'Loughlin sided with Detroit. The game went on, and was called at the end of the seventeenth inning, with the score a tie. That decision and "Wild Bill" Donovan's gameness in pitching seventeen innings, after a very bad start, turned the championship to Detroit.

* * *

It was "Wild Bill's greatest game, and probably the greatest ever played in the annals of the national pastime.

May man sun could put heart into the New York Highlanders that man should be Bill Donovan.

* * *

I claim that in the world's series, when Gowdy caught Walsh off second on Murphy's strikeout, that the play was so fast that you placed the ball on Walsh before he slid. To settle a bet, kindly state in your column if I am right.

J. J. WHITNEY.

Rutland, Vt.

This was Johnny Evers' play, not mine. When the ball was thrown by Gowdy, Walsh seemed to be dazed for an instant, and then he tried to get back to second. Evers got the ball in plenty of time and stooped down and held the ball close to the bag until Walsh slid into it.

* * *

If in a game a man spiked you, while running bases, and then said: "After this, get out the way," what could you do or say?

JOHN CREEDEN.

Worcester.

These kind of things can't be figured out to advance, John. I don't know what I would say or do.

* * *

What club did Paul Strand pitch for before joining the Braves?

ORA RICHARDS.

Mattapan.

He pitched for the Spokane Club of the Northwestern League in 1912 and joined the Braves in the Spring of 1913.

* * *

What's become of Hap Myers?

BILL O'BRIEN.

Worcester.

Darned if I know, Bill. Haven't heard of him since last Fall, when he was with the Providence Feds.

* * *

Do you really think the Braves will win the pennant in 1915?

D. W. G.

Walpole.

Surest thing you know.

* * *

I read your column every night and am very interested in it. I would like to know whether George Stallings shook hands with Connie Mack at the end of the fourth game in the world's series. I don't know whether you will take any notice in this letter, as it comes from a small town in Rhode Island, but trust you will, and will look for it in your column in the AMERICAN.

MAJOR BROWN.

Centreville, R. I.

Stallings and Connie Mack did not shake hands after the fourth game of the world's series. I am pleased that you are interested in this column.

* * *

In talking over triple plays I claimed that Neal Ball, former Red Sox second baseman, executed a triple play all alone, and I claimed that it was never done by anybody. Will you kindly print the answer in your column and tell me if I am right, and also how he executed the triple play.

A BRAVE ROOTER.

120 Tremont street.

The records show that since baseball started there have been eighteen unassisted triple plays, but only one of them in the big leagues. When Neal Ball was a member of the Cleveland team he made an unassisted triple play against the Red Sox. The date was May 19, 1909. I haven't the "dope" at hand to tell you just how the play was made.

KILBANE A REAL STAR OF RING

By ED. W. SMITH.

It's a good, game man who goes back again and seeks more of a medicine that he knows may contain carbolic acid. Johnny Kilbane, one of the greatest little fighting machines in the business, wants nobody the other night when he went out of his class and took on Joe Mandot at Akron, O. Joe treated Johnny with the greatest contempt, tearing into him and pounding him up severely. Mind you, Joe is a lightweight of some fighting ability and gameness, and, while Kilbane possesses both of these qualifications, he found himself overmatched after he had gone along for a little way.

But a thing like that doesn't dismay a man of the fighting instincts of a Kilbane. Note what he is going to do now. Inside of the next two months he is going to battle two world's champions in two absolutely different classes. Look at what he plans to do:

Six rounds with Kid Williams, bantamweight champion, at 122 pounds, in Philadelphia about January 25.

This probably will constitute a record in the ring annals as far as a real champion is concerned. Johnny Kilbane, a real featherweight champion, will meet Johnny Williams, the real bantamweight champion, one week, and probably two weeks later will take on Fred Welsh, real lightweight champion. That's stepping along at a gait, or a number of gaits, never before attempted by a champion fighter.

It's the plan of Harry Edwards, the Philadelphia boxing promoter, to carry out this idea and prove to the world that Kilbane is the fighter away out of the ordinary.

As for Fred Welsh, the idea of him making ringside weight for a six-round contest is a bit far fetched to anybody who knows the champion pretty well. Welsh, in a fighting sense, is a wise old head. He isn't making the weight for anybody if he can dodge the issue. Being a physical culture fiend, Fred knows the risks of bringing himself down to a distressing limit.

But there's one thing about it. Johnny Kilbane is considered in Philadelphia one of the greatest fighters the world ever has seen. He is the real card there and draws the money.

Columbia Opens with Williams Next Week

NEW YORK, Jan. 2—Columbia will play its first hockey game Tuesday against Williams, if the outdoor rink at 117th street and Amsterdam avenue is in shape. The following day the Seventh Regiment will be opposed. The schedule is being arranged and will include two trips, during which games with Cornell, Dartmouth, Harvard, Yale, Williams and St. Paul's school will be played.

When it comes right down to a question of taste, you will agree that PFAFF'S BEER has the pleasantest flavor of any BEER in the market. The fact is doubly important when you know that PFAFF'S BEER is brewed under the strictest hygienic conditions.

SCHOOL NOTES

THE Huntington School is trying to get the Tech gym on Garrison street or the High School of Commerce outdoor board track as a place to practice, in preparation for the match with Somerville High at the Coast Artillery games.

* * *

F. P. O'HARA and C. T. Guething will be the standbys of the Tech short distance relay teams, while M. C. Brock promises to make a good man for the longer distance team, also W. B. Colleary, formerly of Holy Cross.

* * *

THE Tremont Athletic Club, the alumni ice seven of Lexington, and the Belmont Hockey Club, battle for honors today. Rolfe Spicer will lead the Lexington seven.

* * *

IN final preparation for its first interscholastic ice game of the season with Stoneham High this afternoon on Spy Pond, Arlington, the Arlington High School hockey seven had an hour's workout in the Arena yesterday. Captain Donald Ross and Jack Hutchinson, formerly of Arlington High and captain and rover of 1913 M. A. C. seven, were in charge.

* * *

THE English High-Boston College High hockey match scheduled for Monday afternoon, may be called on account of the lack of a rink. The city has not as yet installed the rinks at Franklin Field and the boys are worrying.

* * *

THE Lexington High School ice hockey team plays its fourth game of the season today against the fast All-Star seven of Lexington on the Lexington Arena. The All-Star aggregation is made up of alumni and former high school boys. James McGann is acting captain.

* * *

MANY former high school hockey stars took in the Melrose High-Somerville High hockey contest in the Arena. Among others were "Bill" Lowe, Arlington and Exeter; Harry Atwill, Robogston, Somerville and Worcester Academy; Dave Butterick, Arlington and M. A. C.; Townsend; Barney Thielscher and Bob Paine, both of Brookline High and Harvard; Norm Whitaker, Somerville and Tufts; Louis Rose, Arlington and A. C.; "Bugs" Woodman, Somerville and New Hampshire State, and "Hogs" Wanamaker, Melrose and Dartmouth.

* * *

BILL TALCOTT has been elected captain of the Winthrop High School football team for 1915. He has played at quarterback during the past season and has a good head as a leader and a general.

* * *

HUNTINGTON SCHOOL will start off on its class basketball games Monday, when the boys return from vacation. It is the first time that Huntington has taken up the sport.

SHEAN IS NAMED TO MANAGE GRAYS

Dave Shean is the latest named to manage the Providence club next season, now that "Wild Bill" Donovan has been selected to handle the New York Highlanders.

Mr. Shean captained the Rhode Island team last season and displayed marked ability in handling men, while also doing splendid work at second base and hitting for better than .300.

President Lannin is now in Garden City, but will be in Boston soon and will then decide on the new manager for the Providence Club.

Steven D. Flanigan will remain as secretary and do the work generally assigned to the president. And no one is better fitted for the duty than the Lawrence boy.

A. A. A. U. Probing Pro Charges Here

J. Frank Facey, George W. Brown and W. C. Prout, the other members of the registration committee of the New England A. A. A. U., will confer with Manager Walter Langer of the Arena today regarding the charges of professionalism made against several hockey players, whose cases are under advisement.

Chairman Facey announces the following sanctions have been awarded: February 20 and 21, Armory A. A. A. games at Providence. February 13, boxing at the Irish-American A. A. A. February 21, boxing at the Back Bay Council, K. of C.

Smith and Kramer Train for Big Race

NEW YORK, Jan. 2—Harry Smith, the two-mile indoor national champion, and Willie Kramer, the world's cross-country king, have started serious training for the two-mile run at the Millrose A. A. games in Madison Square Garden on January 14.

Both men will be making their appearance in a big race since his return from abroad, after competing in the English championships, when a mishap to his foot prevented him from showing his best form.

The Fortunes of Fanny

She Is Accosted by a Strange Man and Is Very Much Frightened

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER XXXI.

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company.

As Fanny Hedden went downtown to meet Nellie Benson and her friends, she was not mistaken in fancying that people stared at her interestedly. The girl interpreted their glances as a tribute to the beauty of her new furs. She was so proud of them herself that she did not consider it strange that passers-by and passengers on the car train should look at them with admiration.

The truth of the matter was, however, that the face of the wearer of the furs shone with such happiness and satisfaction that the most casual observer found himself looking at her for the mere pleasure of the sight. Fanny was a pretty girl at all times, but today she was so radiant that he was, as the saying goes, "a sight for sore eyes."

When she reached the meeting place she stepped from the car to greet her friends. As she did so a man stepped forward and lifted his hat.

"Good afternoon!" he said with a broad and ingratiating smile. "It's a nice day, isn't it?"

Fanny started violently and her heart gave a sickening leap. Yet her voice was steady as she replied.

"I think," she said coldly, "that you are mistaken in the person. I do not know you."

"Perhaps not," the man said, again smiling. "But I've seen you at the barber-shop. I never had the pleasure of having you manicure me, for that kind of dandy and duds business isn't in my line. But I've seen bunches of other fellows lured to your table. Perhaps," with a low laugh, "if you will be nice to me now, I may not be able to resist the temptation of adding one to your list of customers."

Fanny flushed hotly. She was too much frightened to know just what to say. Why didn't Nellie come? Why was she not here at the time she promised to be?

"Perhaps you will favor me by going for a little walk with me," the intruder said, dropping his voice as passengers began to gather. "What do you say to that?"

Terror lest his words should be overheard by bystanders who might suspect that he was tormenting her, or, worse still, that she was the kind of a girl who would allow a strange man to talk with her) made Fanny desperate and gave her courage to speak out the anger that was mingled with her other emotions. Moreover, she caught a glimpse of Nellie Benson's face in the crowd of people and she knew that a means of escape was at hand.

"I forbid you to speak to me again!" she ordered in a low, tense voice. "Then, before the man could reply, she hurried toward her friends, regardless of the fact that she had to elbow her way unceremoniously.

"Oh, Nellie!" she gasped, clutching her friend by the arm. "Here's our car. Let's get on quickly!"

Before the three girls could express surprise at her frantic haste, Fanny had pulled and pushed them through the throng into the car. Then she cast a timid glance through the car window and saw the object of her avoidance still standing where she had left him. Evidently he had no intention of following her now that she had made her escape.

"What under the sun's the matter with you that you're in such a rush?" Nellie demanded when she had caught her breath. "You must be in a fierce hurry for dinner."

"I am!" Fanny laughed nervously. "I haven't had any breakfast yet."

She tried to look unconscious of her furs as she greeted Nellie's friends, apologizing for not having wished them a Merry Christmas sooner. She knew that Nellie's eyes were fixed upon her and at last she met them fairly and squarely.

"Well! Some class to you!" Nellie exclaimed. "Santa Claus, or—bet-tah-light—Nonnage younger than Santa has been treatin' you mighty well!"

The words were merry, but Fanny detected a ring of anxiety in her friend's voice.

"They're my only Christmas present, Nell," she explained. "Don't you like them?"

"They're scrumptious!" returned Nellie. "I thought perhaps the firm gave them to you. Did they?" Her tone was still anxious.

"No." Fanny faltered. Then she laid her hand affectionately on Nellie's arm. "Nell," she said, "I can see you don't approve of my furs—but honestly, you have no need to worry. They're mine all right. If things come out as I—I hope—why!"—with a tremulous laugh—"I'll tell you all about it the first one. Can't you believe me, Nell?"

The face into which she was gazing lighted with a smile of relief.

"Of course I do!" Nellie replied. "I won't ask any questions about your beau, because it don't seem fair, 'cause as you still you're ready to tell. Only, Fan," her face sobering again suddenly, "do be careful, dear. All men aren't just what they try to make the girls they want to marry believe."

"I know," returned Fanny. "And I'll be careful."

"And," Nellie admonished, "don't receive attentions from any man till you know all about him. If he loves you, he'll be glad to tell you everything about his folks, and his business. He only men that's got somethin' they're ashamed of that make love to a girl and don't tell her what she's got a right to know if she's a decent sort."

The car stopped and the four girls hurried off together. Nellie and her friends laughed and chatted as they walked along the street towards the restaurant which was their destination. Fanny also laughed and tried to talk. But the sparkle seemed to have gone out of the air and the brilliancy out of the sunshine. If that man had not spoken to her, she mused, and if Nellie had not again warned her against him, the day would have continued perfect.

Even Then!

Humor even penetrates occasionally into the gloomy atmosphere of museums and such places.

The keeper of an Egyptian department was, a few days ago, busy sorting some new curios. Looking up from his work he noticed that his assistant, who was similarly engaged, was standing still, looking at something he held in his hand with an expression of dismay.

"What's the matter, Johnson?" he asked. "Have you struck something you don't understand?"

"Indeed I have, sir!" answered that freckled youth.

"Let me have a look at it," said the man of knowledge. Johnson handed him over a papyrus a few thousand years old on which were scrawled some hieroglyphics.

"Can't make it out, sir!" he said.

"What would you think it meant, now?" queried his chief.

"Couldn't say, sir, unless it's a doctor's prescription in the time of Pharoah!"

Very Vague

Two men were discussing the eloquence of a preacher. "You ought to hear him!" said one. "I did hear him," replied the other. "I listened to him for two hours." "What was he talking about?" "I don't know. He didn't say!"

MOTHERCRAFT

Do you know that a baby has less chance to live a week than an old man of ninety?

Here's Something to Think About

Three hundred and sixty of them die every hour!

Think of that the next time you read about the awful death rate of the soldiers in Europe.

Think of what the population would amount to if half of these ripe prospects for citizenship were not destroyed! And so many of them die? Why should the death rate be so high when it is but natural for women to have children?

We teach our children how to read and write; we make lawyers, doctors, dentists and business men of our sons by educating them. We teach our daughters domestic science, sewing, and all the other things in woman's sphere, but we let the business of having babies take care of itself. Mother craft is what we need to teach them, and that's the reason so many women fail to "make good." And that's the reason why this new profession for women, "Mothercraft," has been gaining so much ground.

Good Housekeeping Magazine has commissioned Sarah Comstock, a woman of wide experience and with the thoroughness of the practical investigator, to dig deep into "Mothercraft" for its readers. It will not be a news report of what has already been accomplished; it will be of far more value than that. It will tell in a big series of smashing articles just exactly what this new profession teaches. It will tell women how to take care of themselves, how to prepare for the coming of the babies, how to care for them when they are here, how to guard their health, and how to do some of the hundred different things that every baby wants done. Would Never Marry Actor, Says Stage Beauty

Maude Andrew Denies to Matinee Idol Willingness to Use His Brains

Two poses of Miss Maude Andrew, who says the average actor lives the laziest sort of life

THE average actor's life is the laziest sort of life and I wouldn't marry an actor if I never married at all," is the startling declaration of Maude Andrew, one of the leading women appearing with Cyril Maude in "Grumpy" at the Plymouth Theatre.

The astonishing feature of this remark lies in the fact that Miss Andrew is herself in the profession she unhesitatingly condemns and is regarded as one of the most beautiful girls on the English stage. This latter phase naturally offers her, and she has had, numerous opportunities of marriage, many of which have come within the ranks of the theatrical life.

"Aside from the leading actors of both England and America, the average actor's life consists merely of lounging about. There is absolutely nothing useful about him. He seldom tries to occupy himself in other things and invariably conveys the impression that something universally important is burdened upon his shoulders. It is true that many of them are professed to have brains, but I have seldom observed their fruitful use.

"And then again there is too much effeminacy and a lack of the business sense. The intelligent actor is the one who can converse outside of his own profession, is able enough to transact business and above all possesses a broad sense of judgment. The man I marry is the man that will use his brains, and usually it is not the average actor."

WILL-O'-THE-WISP

By CONSTANCE CLARKE

"I HAVE closed my eyes again and again,
While the mists from the river creep;
I have heard the clock in the hall strike ten,
And still I am not asleep.

I have blown a kiss to the reddest rose
On the bush where the dark glooms deep;
I have watched the eye of the last star close,
And still I am not asleep.

I have watched the swallows dip in the blue
And counted a thousand sheep
Jump over a railing two by two,
And still I am not asleep.

The breath of the wind at play in the grain
Has brought me a trust to keep,
And the smell of the wet woods in the rain
Drifts in to surprise me—asleep.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

YOU MUST HAVE A CHAPERON

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I was eighteen last June, and I have been keeping company with a young man two months. There is a two-day's excursion going to Washington by train, and he has asked me if I would like to go. Do you think it would be proper for me to go with him, or must I have a chaperon? HAZEL M.

YOU must not dream of taking this overnight trip without a chaperon. It would do great harm to your reputation, to say the least, and it would undoubtedly cause you to forfeit the respect of the man you accompanied.

THIS MUST GO TO COURT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

In 1906 I ran away and was married. I was only sixteen; my husband was only nineteen. A year later a son was born. Then he ran away. The baby died, and I have not lived with him since. I had him arrested, and he only paid me a couple of months and ran away. Now, I would like to know if I could have my marriage annulled, as you see I have not seen him in five years. Can you tell me if I can secure my freedom under this condition?

HEART-BROKEN.

THERE are legal all sections for just such cases as yours. Probably if your parents or guardians will appear in court and testify to your age at the time of your marriage it can be annulled.

FORGET HIM

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl of eighteen. I have been keeping company with a young man of twenty. He seemed very much devoted. I did not care for him at first, but finally grew to love him. I introduced him to a girl friend, whom he now goes with, but he seems to care for me, as he continues to phone and says he would like to come back to me. I gave my consent, but he never comes. Please tell me what you think of him. CHICAGO GIRL.

I THINK he is fickle young man who is best forgotten. He seems to be about as disloyal to your girl friend as he was to you. Just eliminate him from your life and consider yourself well out of a bad business.

DON'T TALK ABOUT OTHERS

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Do you think it advisable to brag about the different men that come up to your house and take you out to a fellow you care very much for? I don't like him to think that he is the only one I go out with, as I know that he goes out with other girls. TEASE.

A GIRL who is really charming and attractive need not tell of her conquests in order to have one man realize that others like her. Do not talk to one man about others. In the first place it does not interest him, in the second it is not in good taste, and in the third it is perfectly obvious to him why you do it.

Brilliant Birds of a Feather

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

THE love of color in personal decoration is largely due to admiration excited by certain brilliant-hued birds. Among the species that have contributed most to human garniture, both by the direct contribution of feathers and through suggestion given by their beauty of coloration, there are few or none that take rank above the pheasant.

The pheasant owes its beauty not only to splendid combinations of color, but also to pleasing forms of body and plumage.

The owl is a fearful enemy of young pheasants, attacking them with fury on their perches at night. But the ancestral instincts of pheasants lead them to keep upon, or near, the ground, so that they are also in great danger at night from small animals of prey and from foxes.

The fame of the pheasant in England and western Europe rests upon its qualities as a game fowl, and the species known there are not remarkable for beauty. Pheasants are not indigenous to America, and here the ruffed grouse is often mistakenly called a pheasant. Our native turkeys are closely related to the pheasant family.

The true home of the pheasant is Asia. There fifty or sixty species are known, and some of them are of surpassing beauty, rivaling, in that respect, the renowned bird-of-paradise. The Impeyan pheasants, which dwell around the Vale of Cashmere and elsewhere among the Himalaya mountains, are almost entitled to be called the most beautiful birds in the world.

The golden pheasant of China is also superbly beautiful. Crowned with a brilliant crest that glows like polished gold, its body and wing feathers exhibit dazzling combinations of scarlet, blue, black and yellow. There is also in southern China a silver-crested pheasant hardly less beautiful.

In Sumatra there is found a species of pheasant which much resembles the peacock. The males of this species are from five to six feet in length from beak to tail.

Pheasants, notwithstanding their aristocratic magnificence of appearance, readily interbreed with humbler kinds of birds, including the common barnyard fowl, the guinea hen and the black grouse. English pheasants are the descendants of Chinese birds which, long ago, were brought to England and crossed either with grouse or with some unidentified native species of pheasant, which possessed no great beauty. The descendant of a male pheasant and a domestic hen is known as a "pheas-ant."

The renown of the pheasant as a game bird is due to its skill in hiding itself on the ground, the fine scent that it offers when driven from cover, and the opportunities it affords to the fine art of cookery.

Up-to-the-Minute Jokes

A policeman, whose evidence was taken on commission, deposed: "The prisoner sat upon me, calling me a precious doll, a scarecrow, a ragamuffin, and an idiot." And, this being the conclusion of his deposition, his signature was preceded by the formal ending, "All of which I swear is true."

"My wife," said the tall, lantern-jawed man, "is a woman; a woman as you can find; but she can hammer nails like lightning."

"Wonderful!" sang the chorus.

"Lightning," the tall, lantern-jawed man continued, "seldom strikes twice in the same place."

"Of course, I don't wish to cut any obstacle in the way of your getting married," a mistress said to her servant, "but I wish it were possible for you to postpone it until I get another maid." "Well, mum," Mary Ann replied, "I hardly think I know 'im well enough to ask 'im to put it off!"

A young and faly pianist had just struggled through the "Blue Danube," and was under the impression that she had played it very well. "I'm afraid, Mr. Cowles," she said, fishing for a compliment, "that my music is too poor to give you enjoyment." "Oh, not at all!" replied he in a very offhand way. "It does not take much to please me in the way of music, you know!"

"No," said the old gentleman sternly, "I will not do it. Never have I sold anything by false representations and I will not begin now. It is an inferior grade of shoe, and I will never pass it off as anything better. Mark it, 'A Shoe Fit for a Queen,' and put it in the window. A queen does not have to do much walking."

A pompous manufacturer of machinery was showing a stranger over his factory.

"This piece of work, isn't it?" he said, when they were looking at a very ingenious machine.

"Yes," said the visitor, "but you cannot hold a candle to the goods we are turning out."

"Indeed!" said the chagrined manufacturer. "And what is your line?"

"Gunpowder," was the reply.

Wrong Pride and Prejudice

Narrowness of Vision Must Be Discarded If One Really Seeks Happiness

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

IN the nature of each of us is a fine grain of conservatism that makes us like that to which we are accustomed, that which is familiar and known to us. The strange, the unknown, the different strikes a certain terror to our hearts and we are in awe of what we cannot understand.

And it is this dread of the unknown that is at the root of all the cruel prejudice nation feels for nation and race for race.

I am going to quote from a letter I have received from a girl who has bitter pride and is ashamed of it and who feels the aloofness of prejudice and criticizes herself for it—and yet who is not quite able to rise above her feelings.

"I am much in love with a man, and yet am not willing to marry him. Can you show me how to conquer my feelings and be happy?" writes Alma J. "I come from a light-haired northern race, and his is a southern nationality. I have a feeling of superiority that I hate myself for having. And yet he is more of a gentleman than my other friends, and is better educated and more refined. But some of his ways seem queer to me, and I can't quite make up my mind to stand the smiles of the friends who are of my own people. But I never knew a man so fine and worthy of love. He is of Spanish descent and I am of Norwegian blood. I love him and I am ashamed of my love, and in the next breath I am ashamed of myself for being ashamed. What shall I do?"

My dear Alma, do one of two things: Either say to yourself, "I cannot dream of marrying this man. I am one of those narrow-minded, really prejudiced people who can see no good in anything that is at all different from the customs of the narrow little world in which they have always lived and moved and in which they priggishly choose to stay forever. I came of those whose horizons never change. I like only that to which I am accustomed.

"I have not sufficient strength of character to stand the criticism of people who will ridicule me out of the notion of accepting what I really want, and then will offer me nothing in place of that which they influenced me to resign. I am not strong enough to lose my friends [illegible] fairly. I cannot influence the point of view of my prejudiced friends. But they can hold me in their circle of narrow-mindedness. I want those to which I am accustomed served up to me as my daily portion.

"I couldn't possibly grow and broaden and come to see that there is world sufficiently apart from my own little sphere. I am not tolerant or kind. I'd be miserable with a man whose traditions are different from mine, and I'd make him a bit unhappy, too, I suppose. So I won't marry him."

Your warm-blooded southern admirer will probably declaim a bit about his blasted life. But some day he will give thanks to the powers that be for delivering him from the thrall of a creature riveted in the cold tempered steel of Pride and Prejudice.

Marry him if this is what you can say and feel and think:

"My husband and I have had different upbringings in keeping with the different traditions of our races. I shall enjoy learning his point of view. And I shall acquaint him with mine, gently and patiently, in the hope that he will love my ideas as well as his ideal of me. I want to broaden my horizon. I love his ways and customs because they are a part of him.

"Because of our very differences we will augment each other's natures and supply each to the other what is lacking to make a full and rounded personality. I am proud that a man so different from me has been attracted by me. His people shall be my people and mine his. We will win our friends to admiration and understanding of the differences that eliminate and location have brought out in our ancestors and given us to inherit. We will always find new things to study and admire in one another.

"Our life together will be stimulating and free from the boredom that might result from marrying someone who was the exact replica of ourselves." We are setting out on the splendid adventure of life together, and it shall be a happy voyage of discovery!"

Pretty Good Excuse

There are endless numbers of correspondents who would like to make the excuse given by a youth who was passing his first year at boarding school.

The first letter was anxiously awaited by his loving family. When it came, some time after his arrival, it read thus:

"Dear parents, I hardly think I will be able to send you many letters while here. You see, when things are happening, I haven't time, and when they aren't happening I haven't anything to write. You'll understand how it is, won't you, father? And another, just ask father to explain to you how it is. So now I'll say good-by, with lots of love. In haste, Raymond."

JEWETT PLAYERS IN SHAKESPEARE

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

The Boston Opera House began the new year with a new policy, and the first performance by the Jewett Players of Shakespeare at very popular prices would seem to indicate that the attention of the public has been secured.

The beautiful auditorium was very well filled both downstairs and in the balconies and boxes. The audience was enthusiastic and keenly appreciative and remained until the very end of "As You Like It," the comedy selected to open the engagement.

Mr. Jewett's company is almost entirely English. Its members were recruited from the Phyllis Neilson Terry Company and the "Garden of Paradise" companies, so I am informed, both of which failed unexpectedly in New York recently. It is needless to say that such competent artists are not usually to be found in a stock company playing with fifty cents as top price.

Accordingly, those who like the classic drama will find that there is nothing cheap about this company except the price of seats. The production was really superb. The vast storehouse of operatic scenery enabled Mr. Jewett and Business Manager W. R. MacDonald to dress the play as no Shakespearean road company could possibly produce it, and settings are extremely important in "As You Like It."

Mr. Jewett himself was content to make the production and direct the stage, and the role of Orlando was in the hands of George Relph, an actor who knows his Shakespeare, who has an agreeable presence and a good voice.

Rosalind is played by Viva Birkett, a tall and pleasant young woman with a rich voice and an intelligent understanding of the part. Miss Vivian Whitaker was seen and heard as Celia, and she also pleased by her voice and features.

Max Montesole as Touchstone the jester proved to be a good comedian of the conventional and traditional type. H. Asheton Tonge was Duke Frederick, Leonard Mudie the Adam, Claude Beerbohm the Oliver. Vera Fuller Mellish, Viola Compton, Lionel Braham and L'Estrange Millman were in important parts.

The voices carried through the vast auditorium far better than one would imagine in a house built for singing. In the balconies one heard very well. "As You Like It" will be given all next week and will be followed by "Romeo and Juliet."

GIVES CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LECTURE

Clarence W. Chadwick, C. S. B., of Omaha, Neb., delivered a lecture on Christian Science last evening at the First Church of Christ, Scientist, to a large audience. He was introduced by the first reader of the church, H. Cornell Wilson. Mr. Chadwick said:

"The belief that consciousness is both good and evil has been the seeming cause of untold suffering and torment to the human race.

"Christian Science defines real consciousness as the one infinite intelligence or mind which is God. 'Be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind' involves a mental process of separation of right and wrong thought.

"Right thoughts or ideas in Christian Science are emanations of the one divine mind or intelligence. Wrong thoughts are beliefs only.

"The Christ, Truth, is the true or spiritual idea of God, a divine activity or influence which operates mentally to destroy all belief in an evil consciousness. It is the only remedy for both sin and disease.

Mary Baker Eddy is the discoverer and founder of Christian Science. Her genuine nobility of character, her intensely religious nature, her unbounded love for God and humanity, made her one of the world's greatest of modern religious leaders and teachers.

"Christian Science did not originate in Mrs. Eddy's human mind. It was the Christ idea of the oneness and allness of divine mind that found expression in her purified mentality. The revelation of the spiritual idea to Mrs. Eddy's consciousness is the greatest mental phenomenon that could ever be experienced by a human being. It is 'the resurrection and the life' to all who love God and keep His commandments.

"The Christian Science text-book, 'Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures,' is the natural and logical outcome of Mrs. Eddy's unselfed devotion and fidelity to the spiritual idea."

Griffins, Arrested in Groton, in Tombs

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—Attorney Francis H. Griffin and his wife, Clara H. Griffin, under Federal indictment following their arrest in Groton, Mass., on the charge of having defrauded acquaintances of high social standing out of between $300,000 and $400,000, have been brought back from Colorado Springs, whence they fled about a month ago, forfeiting bail bonds of $37,500. They are locked up in the Tombs.

Fights Honor Legacy to the United States

DENVER, Col., Jan. 2.—The will of Rufus Clark leaves $3,500 to the United States to make good the theft of a man Clark knew stole that amount. Now the charity to which Clark left the remainder of his $100,000 estate fights this legacy, holding a bequest to the government illegal. Clark earned the sobriquet "Potato" by sending a carload of potatoes to the destitute after the great Chicago fire in the seventies.

Wilson Greeted by Rulers of World

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—New Year's greetings to President Wilson from the rulers of other nations poured into the White House. Messages were received from King Albert of Belgium, King George of Great Britain, King Gustaf of Sweden, King Haakon of Norway and Count Bernstorff, German Ambassador to the United States.

Riot Ends Parade of Unemployed

NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—An outdoor demonstration of the unemployed ended in a riot when the marchers refused to haul down objectionable banners. A policeman who ordered the dispersal of the marchers was severely beaten.

MOTOR NOTES.

By J. C. KERRISON.

The fifteenth annual automobile show, under the auspices of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, opens in New York this afternoon. Without a doubt it will be the biggest and most comprehensive display of motor cars and accessories ever seen in America. Never before has there been offered so splendid an opportunity to see such a wide range of motor vehicles under one roof, and the number of cars to be displayed is greater than in any previous exhibit.

The Palace has been magnificently decorated for the occasion. The decorations are designed not so much with the intention of producing an extravagant or potential mural effect as to secure a setting which will show to advantage the cars exhibited. The general scheme of decoration is on the Persian order. The lighting system is most interesting. A new scheme of displaying the names of the cars is employed this year—instead of painted signs, letters in the name of the cars are wrought in the form of electric light tubes, so that when illuminated the name will shine forth.

The newly elected board of directors of the Bay State Automobile Association held a meeting at the headquarters of the association yesterday afternoon, transacted business of importance and mapped out a plan of campaign for the coming year. The officers propose great activities during the coming twelve months, among which is the holding of a dinner at least once a month.

Writing from Merced, Cal., F. A. Chamberlain, who drove his light four Mitchell from Boston to the coast, informs F. H. Lucas, of the Pope-Hartford Co. of Boston, distributors of this car, that he has passed the 6,000-mile mark, and in all this distance the engine never missed a shot or refused to respond under all extreme road conditions. His gasoline and his oil averaged 18 miles per gallon. His United States nobby tread casings did the work well. They had but two punctures on the entire trip to the coast and one still has Boston air in it.

NEWS OF THE GREATER BOSTON CHURCHES

Next week will be the beginning of the "Week of Prayer" in churches of Greater Boston.

Tremont Temple will have meetings every evening except Saturday. Many churches will hold these meetings three evenings in the week. The Massachusetts Federation of Churches, combining with the Boston Federation, has asked the ministers of all denominations to give special attention to a series of religious services to be continued from the opening of the New Year till Easter.

To Make Others Happy Is a Great and Beautiful Work

And No One in the World Does This More Willingly, More Patiently and with More Self-Sacrifice Than the People of the Stage

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company

It is the trade, the occupation, of the people of the stage to make others forget the cares and sorrows of the world, to teach a lesson or preach a sermon while they entertain.

It is hard work. It is precarious work.

The playwright and manager must guess at the taste of a fickle public. There is never an attempt to force bad plays down the people's throats. Every manager wants to produce a play that the people will want to see, as every honest business man wants to produce or sell goods that the people want to buy.

At great expense of money and time and nerve force plays are produced, every one concerned contributing to the result.

There is no economy of time or of trouble. The managers work, the actors work, all as hard as they know how to work.

Perhaps no one thing that is produced by human labor is more severely taxing on the endurance than the making of a play which means not only the writing of it, but the rehearsals, the creation of the scenery, all the thousands of details that must be carefully looked after until the curtain goes up on the first night.

It is the public that reaps the result of this effort. It is the tired working man or manufacturer or business man or lawyer who is rested and entertained and usually instructed.

The brain and the nerves are rested. And the next day's work is done better and more easily because of an evening's recreation.

Because plays sometimes fail, because actors sometimes do not seem to fit the parts they play, people are too often hasty with condemnation.

Too often critics, writing to parade their own smartness, sneer at work that has cost weeks of thought and labor.

Plays are sometimes bad, of course. All human productions are sometimes bad—oftener bad than good in the average case.

But as a rule every play produced is well worth the money that it costs to see it. And the actor who does not do well now and then is pretty sure to do better in another part. Encouragement will help him. Discouragement may crush him.

In going to see a play remember that the manager has planned and worked and that the actor has rehearsed for you. Their mission is to please you. They put their best into the play that you see.

If you see it intelligently, you will find good in it. You would be surprised if you knew how many of the ideas that help you today have been picked up in the theatre.

That is where you get your perspective. You get out of your rut by looking at life from a new angle.

You see it cross-sectioned as you could not possibly anywhere else. You get the viewpoint of men who see and know things that you do not know. And you always profit by such an experience and at small cost of time and money.

This newspaper has consistently encouraged the theatrical business, managers and actors, players who take part in dramas and comedies, as well as those who do their entertaining on the vaudeville stage.

The Boston AMERICAN believes that in doing this it serves its readers well. Men must in this world dspend for their information and amusement on other men, and actors and producers are the only class of men specially educated to entertain. Incidentally, they are able to do more real educational work than many of those whose business it is to give instruction in schools and colleges and in the pulpit.

Interest yourself in playgoing. It will pay you a real return.

AFTER

OVER the din of battle,
Over the cannons' rattle,
Over the strident voices of men and their dying groans
I hear the falling of thrones.

Out of the wild disorder
That spreads from border to border
I see a new world rising from ashes of ancient towns;
And the rulers wear no crowns.

Over the blood-charged water,
Over the field of slaughter,
Down to the hidden vaults of Time, where lie the wornout things,
I see the passing of Kings.

Mysteries of Nature and Science

Answer to a Correspondent Who Is Curious About Infinite Space and Would Like to Know What It Is

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

"PLEASE analyze what is commonly called 'infinite space,' giving your theories as to the substance of space and, with the belief that there must be an end to everything, what exists beyond space.—G. I. W."

Space is not regarded as a substance, or as being affected by any substance that may be contained in it. If you could take all the air out of a room to the last molecule the included space would remain the same, provided that the walls were not crushed in.

Infinite space means extension without limitation in all directions. Therefore it can have no end. The extent or magnitude of such space is conceived to be greater than any assignable or finable extent or magnitude. The instant you try to set a limit space shoots over your imagined boundary, as unconfined as before, and you feel that you could never "corral" it.

Our minds are confronted by a double difficulty—we can neither limit space nor comprehend its illimitability, for human intelligence is unable to grasp infinity, either of space or of time.

People sometimes think of space as being infinitesimality, which is the opposite of infinity.

The Globe of Space

People sometimes think of space as being globular in form. Then they say: "We can, in a manner, conceive of the surface of the globe of space as extending away and away, getting larger and larger, and wider and wider, without limit, but surely there must be an end in the other direction, for as the centre is approached space becomes smaller and smaller, and at last, at the very centre, it must reach a degree of smallness which cannot be exceeded. There is then an imaginable limit to the infinitesimal if not to the infinite."

But, mathematically, the infinitesimal is a quantity or magnitude smaller than any assignable quantity or magnitude, and its limit can no more be approached, or fixed, than can that of the infinite. The geometrical analogy of the globe, as defining the form of space, is misleading. We cannot assign a shape to infinite space, since we cannot assign a limit to it.

It is a pure idea, flitting perpetually through the mind, giving us a certain sense of reality, and yet as ungraspable as a spirit.

Many think of the universe as filling all space, the meaning of "the universe" being the aggregate collection of stars, with their attendant bodies, such as planets, comets, meteors, etc., whose existence is revealed to us by our eyes and our telescopes. But all the evidence so far assembled by astronomical observation goes to show that there are boundaries to the starry universe on all sides. Its heights and depths have been approximately sounded, and we can say that its most distant stars are probably not more than ten or twenty thousand light-years away, a light-year being nearly six million-million miles.

This is, of course, an enormous distance, but it is nothing in comparison with infinity. Considered in a broad sense, the starry universe is only an atom in space. The question then arises whether it is the only "atom" of the kind in existence. We have no direct knowledge of other systems of stars outside our own, but to me it seems inevitable that there must be others, which lie beyond our means of detection.

It is possible that these "outside universes" are not within the limits of the mysterious medium that we call ether, which affords the only means of transmitting light from one part of our universe to another. Just as no sound can be made to pass out into space beyond the limits of the earth's atmosphere, because the air is necessary for the transmission of sound waves, so no light may be able to pass outside the boundaries of the ether, or to enter them across the empty space around.

Thinking About Infinite.

According to this view, each starry system, or independent universe, may have its own bubble of enveloping ether, within which light plays in all directions, but outside of which no ray can penetrate, for lack of a medium capable of carrying the luminous waves.

But, however we might multiply the supposable number of universes, we could never fill infinite space with them, unless we imagined their number to be infinite also.

Thinking about the infinite is confessedly a kind of mental intoxication, and yet it has an inspiring effect, and tends to expand the mind. Sometimes we think we have it, and then we find that it has flitted away from us, but always, by our efforts, we widen the field of thought. If we are chasing a rainbow, at least we are making discoveries by the way.

Inklings and Thinklings

By WEX JONES

One great advantage possessed by the theatre of war is that no one comes in half-way through the act and steps on your toes.

These days a girl without spats looks as incomplete as an oyster on the half shell.

The new boss of Albania is named Prenk Bib Doda.
Oh, Prenk Bib Doda,
Do you live in a pagoda?
Are you fond of ice cream soda,
Oh, Prenk Bib Doda?
Do you love a girl named Rhoda,
Oh, Prenk Bib Doda?

Sorry we're run out of rhymes before getting any dramatic stuff into our poem.

Girls form canning clubs.—Headline.
Any one who has even been canned by his best girl will guarantee them success.

See by the papers that a lot of Calmucks are coming for the Czar. That's right; Nicholas should keep his feet nice and warm.

Washington officially announces that our Indians are not Mongols. Keep cool, keep cool; we never said they were. And any one who has played football against Jim Thorpe is willing to swear he's an Indian.

New show tried out in Sing Sing instead of Atlantic City. Proclaimed a success because not a single spectator left the house.

Break your resolutions early.

Sir Oliver Lodge, World-Famous Scientist, Says He Has Been TALKING WITH THE DEAD

Sir Oliver Lodge, world-famous scientist, who asserts he has talked with the dead, has written a page story on the subject for tomorrow's Boston Sunday AMERICAN. It is an amazing article.

We have no means of knowing whether Sir Oliver Lodge REALLY has talked with the dead, but Sir Oliver says he has, and he believes he has. Says Sir Oliver:

"We here on this planet are limited in certain ways and are blind to much that is going on; but I tell you we are surrounded by beings working with us, co-operating, helping such as people in visions had some perception of. And that which religion tells us, that saints and angels are with us, that the Master Himself is helping us, is, I believe, literally true."

This, remember, from ONE OF THE GREATEST SCIENTISTS NOW LIVING.

Rudyard Kipling, a gentleman known wherever in this world they read books and magazines and newspapers, has been out from London-town to Salisbury Plain to call upon our friends of the first Canadian contingent.

In the Sunday AMERICAN—and in no other Sunday newspaper published in New England—Mr. Kipling tells how the boys from Canada have been getting along at their training and how they impressed HIM. No better man to size up a soldier-man than the eminent friend of the eminent Mr. Mulvaney. Whether you are a neutral in favor of the allies, or a neutral standing by the Kaiser—whatever your sympathies—you SURELY will find the Kipling page of the Sunday AMERICAN an interesting contribution to the literature of the war.

The first Sunday of the month means the distribution of the American Sunday Monthly Magazine with every copy of the Sunday AMERICAN.

The editor of the monthly magazine is evidently one who subscribes to the old maxim that "well begun is half done." His first offering in the New Year is made up of a cover designed by Harrison Fisher and stories by Jack London, Will Payne and Bruno Lessing. Edward Mott Wooley, an up-to-the-minute gentlemen who writes of business in a way to make business as interesting as fiction, contributes a seasonable article on "Training the Minutes to Hustle for You."

"Debt is a relentless, merciless beast that hunts its victims without stopping—all day, and preventing sleep at night.

"Debt will not let you LIVE in peace.

"It humiliates, degrades, discourages and belittles.

"Debt will not let you DIE in peace. It hangs like a black cloud above the heads of doctors and nurses, or presses with suffocating weight on your chest, reminding you up to the last minute that you have neglected and betrayed those that you are about to leave helpless."

The four sentences above are from the Sunday AMERICAN'S full-page editorial, "Debt—Fight It in 1915!" If they arouse your interest, if they make you say to yourself "THAT interests ME, I shall have to read ALL of that, in the Sunday AMERICAN," they have served their useful purpose.

Several pages of the Sunday AMERICAN will be given over to photographs of the most interesting social event of the season, the recent cotton ball at the home of Mrs. Horatio Nelson Slater.

Among Mrs. Slater's three hundred guests were many of the season's debutantes. SEE these Boston buds—in cotton—in the Sunday AMERICAN.

Arthur Howard, moreover, has been talking with John F. Hurley.

Arthur lives in Salem.

John lives in Salem.

Arthur is an ex-Mayor.

John ditto.

Mr. Howard is quite a little writer. From time to time he has delighted Salem by getting out his newspaper, the Dispatch.

Mr. Hurley has just been recalled by the people. (Recalled is a polite political phrase meaning bounced, fired, canned, and the like of that.)

The editor of the Sunday AMERICAN commissioned Brother Howard to call upon Brother Hurley and interview "John F." on tall hats, the weather, blind tigers, rum, anything. The result will appear in the Sunday AMERICAN. Our own opinion is that it will be as interesting as the Rudyard Kipling piece.

The Sunday AMERICAN—as perhaps should have been said in the beginning—is hereafter to be much larger. It will have more pages, more big and exclusive pictures. Tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN, for example, will be written by Rudyard Kipling, Sir Oliver Lodge, Jack London, Will Payne, Ella Wheeler Wilcox, Elbert Hubbard, Edward Mott Wooley, Bruno Lessing, thirty Boston reporters and fifty reporters at New England points outside of Boston. There will be two full pages of war pictures and all the latest news from special representatives in Berlin, Petrograd, Vienna, Paris and London.

In the "Smile" department—second counter to the right—will be found all the old favorites, including the original Katzenjammer children, Their Only Child, Jimmy, and Mr. Happy Hooligan, still—still, alas!—still pursuing Suzanne and still pursued by old Colonel Hoodoo.

Mr. Thomas E. Powers is the popular superintendent of the Smile department. No trouble to show goods.

P. S.—The way to avoid being AWFULLY sorry, on Monday, is to deliver a few well chosen remarks to your newsdealer on Saturday. Say to him: "PLEASE save me a copy of the Sunday AMERICAN!"
